CONKLING GONE.

Lord Roscoe's Defeat Admitted by the Stalwart Organs.

Grant's Severe Denunciation of Garfield in His Letter to Jones.

Gov. Cornell Notifies the New York Senate of the Resignations.

May 31 the Probable Date of the Senatorial Election.

Latest Washington News—Nominations—Bonds—Senate—The Conkling-Administration Fight,

The Stalwarts Surrender.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Express' Albany special says: The Albany Express, which is the only organ of the stalwarts at the capital, concedes this morning the defeat of Conkling and appeals for peace. It also speaks in the kindliest manner of Robertson and acknowledges him as the present leader of the party, and guarantees its firm support to him in the future.

Little Hope for Roscoe.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 19.—New developments in the Senatorial question show that the stalwarts are losing ground every minute, an evident desire seeming to have taken hold of the Republican party to depose Conkling from bossing. The Governor has concluded that the first idea as to the question of notifying the Assembly meant notifying the Legislature, and will as soon as advisable notify that body of the resignation, as the Senate officially is still in a blissful state of ignorance that anything has occurred to mar the tranquility of the political atmosphere. It it should be attempted to read the explanation of the resigned Senators, it is thought the whole matter will be tabled, and that an adjournment will follow each attempt to enlighten the State Senate on the subject of State representation in the National Senate. There is but little chance for Conkling now, unless a coalition with the Democrats can be effected, and that would necessarily shelve Platt, and the Democrats would certainly demand half the spoils. It is thought, however, by men who should know that Conkling will within the next two days retire from the contest altogether. Robertson will stay in the Senate until the issue is decided. The hotels are crowded with gangs of politicians.

Grant's Letter.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The following letter from the ex-President to Senator Jones of Nevada is published here:

CITY OF MEXICO, April 24.—My Dear Senator: I see by the latest dispatches received here from the capital of our country that the dead-lock in organizing the Senate is not yet broken, and that nothing has been done by the President to allay the bitterness which must be engendered by his most recent appointments. When the first batch of nominations for New York was sent in I was delighted. I believed then the President had determined to recognize the Republican party and not a faction, but his nomination of to-day convinces me that his first act was but the spurt of a deep-laid scheme by somebody to punish the prominent leaders for being openly friendly to me. I cannot believe that General Garfield is the author of this policy. I give him credit for being too big a man to descend to such means for the punishment of men who gave him a hearty support in his election, and who are disposed to give him such support now, for the offense of having had a former preference for some one else for the office which he now holds, but Garfield is the President and is responsible for all the acts of the Administration. Conkling and Platt are the chosen Senators from the great State of New York, and that, too, against all the opposition of the Administration created by the same party that elected them. This should give them all the stronger claim to be consulted in the matter of the appointments in their State. When it comes to filling the most influential office in their State without consulting these Senators it is a great slight. When he selects the most offensive man to be found it becomes an insult and ought to be resented to the bitter end. I sincerely hope the President will see this and correct his mistake himself and restore harmony to the party. He owes this to himself and to those without whom he could not have been elected. Nobody believes that he could have carried New York without the active support of her present Senators. Their passive support would not have answered. Without the State of New York Gen. Garfield would not now be President. His rewarding Robertson is not only offensive to the New York Senators, but it is offensive to the New York Republicans. The change of Badeau and Creamer, the two appointments in which I feel a strong personal interest, was very distasteful to me; the first because of our personal relations, and my wish that he should be kept where his office would support him until he finishes some work he is engaged upon, and which he could do without interfering with his public duties; the second, because it was at the expense of removing the son of my old Secretary of State who probably had no superior, certainly never for moral worth, in the department. It is true Mr. Fish resigned, but he did this from a sense of honor, supposing it to be the duty of representatives abroad to give a new Administration the opportunity of saying whether they were wanted or not. Very truly yours,

U. S. GRANT.

To Hon. J. H. Jones, United States Senator, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Garfield.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Mrs. Garfield slept well last night for the first time since her illness. She has but little fever to-day, takes some nourishment and is in every way greatly improved. She is now believed by her friends to be wholly out of danger.

NOMINATIONS.

The White House is thronged with visitors this morning, though few were so fortunate as to reach the President with their papers. Several Senators called and found the President busy in the preparation of his final list of nominations to be sent to the Senate. Among those which there is good authority to believe will be made is ex-Representative Loring to be Commissioner of Agriculture, the resignation of Commissioner LeDuc, having been accepted by the President, and Col. J. H. Baxter to be Surgeon-General of the Army.

Conkling Out of the Race.

ALBANY, May 19.—The Administration Republicans say they are ready to go into an election to fill the vacancies but will have nothing to do with any caucus. They feel perfectly able to defeat the return of Conkling or Platt unless the Democrats go with the other side, but they will take their chances, believing that if the Democrats fuse with the Conklingites they, the Administration Republicans, will beat both at the polls next fall. The Conklingites are strongly in favor of going into an election as soon as possible and say that Conkling is out of the race; that he will not be a candidate. The Democrats are opposed to an election, claiming that the question should be left to the people. The probabilities are there will be an election without any preliminary caucus on the part of the Republicans.

More Nominations.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Geo. B. Loring, Massachusetts Commissioner of Agriculture, vice LeDuc, resigned; Gen. W. Scofield, Pa., Judge of the Court of Claims; Blanche K. Bruce, Miss., Register of the Treasury, vice Scofield transferred; Lucius P. Thompson, Surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia; John F. Dravo, Surveyor of the Port of Pittsburg, Pa.; Benj. Darlington, Postmaster, Pittsburg.

Collectors of Internal Revenue — Richard Rowell, Fourth District of Illinois; Francis H. Pierpont, Second District of West Virginia.

U. S. Consuls—Selah Morrill, Massachusetts, Jerusalem; John M. Glover, Indiana, Havre; Jas. C. Sook, California, Tientsin; Volney V. Smith, Arkansas, St. Thomas; J. G. Crawford, New Hampshire, Coaticook; Geo. F. Masher, New Hamshire, Nice; E. H. Rogers, Nebraska, Vera Cruz; Jesse Moore, Illinois, Callao; H. A. Kaley, of Nebraska, Chemnitz; David Vickers, New Jersey, Matanzas; Geo. W. Roosevelt, Pennsylvania, at Bordeaux.

The Senate Notified.

ALBANY, May 19.—In the Senate the Governors Private Secretary presented the following commnnication:

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
Albany, May 19.

To the Legislature;

The Legislature is hereby respectfully notified that the two Senatorial offices, by which the State of New York is entitled to Representatives in the Congress of the United States, are now vacant by the resignation of the late incumbents.

ALONZO B. CORNELL.

Chandler's Nomination.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Senate Judiciary Committee took a vote on the nomination of Wm. E. Chandler, Solicitor General, as follows: In favor of confirmation, Logan, Ingalls and McMillon—3; against, Davis, Ill., Bayard and Lamar—3; absent, Edmunds and Garland. It is understood that in view of the equal division of the committee the nomination will be reported back to the Senate without recommendation.

The New York Nominees.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Information received at the Capitol is that the New York nominations, in place of those withdrawn, have been made out as follows: Woodford, renominated for District Attorney for Southern District of Tennessee, renominated for Attorney Eastern District; Stratton for Marshal Southern District, in place of Payne; Baily for Marshal Northern District, in place of McDougall; Gould for Collector of Customs at Buffalo, in place of Tyler.

No Thought of Being Returned.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Commercial's Albany special says Conkling, when he resigned, had no thought of being returned. Cornell does nothing, and his whispers that he will never consent to become a Senator grow weaker now that ever. The half breeds understand that Conkling meant his resignation to be final.

The Slate.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The slate as made up last night and as it stood this morning contained the names of Strahan and Bailey for Marshals, but the former declined and this afternoon Knox was put in his place, and then Bailey's name was taken off and MacDougall renominated.

Declined.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—Strahan declined to accept the Marshalship, and the President renominated McDougall, who was withdrawn. Henry E. Knox was nominated for Marshal in place of Payne, who was withdrawn.

Bruce Renominated.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—Hon. W. Scofield, now Register of the Treasury, has been nominated to be Judge of the Court of Claims, and ex-Senator Bruce of Mississippi is to succeed Scofield as Register.

New York Nominations.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The President sent to the Senate the following New York nominations: Woodford, District Attorney for the Southern District; Tenney, District Attorney of the Eastern District; McDougall, Marshal of the Northern District; Charles A. Gould, Collector of Customs, Buffalo.

The Election to Come Off on the 31st.

ALBANY, May 19.—The Governor has also notified the Assembly of the vacancies in the United States Senate. This of course puts off the election of Senators till Tuesday, the 31st inst.

The Letters Not Read.

Senator Sherman opposed the resolution and moved to go into executive session. Lost; yeas 23, nays 28.

Senator Plum's amendment was then agreed to, and Senator Kellogg's resolution as amended adopted.

The Senate then went into executive session.

THE DISASTER TO THE DOTEREL.

LONDON, May 19.—Advices from St. Vincent state that details have been received there of a disaster to the British sloop of war Doterel, which was blown up at Sandy Point, in the Strait of Magellan, involving the loss of 143 lives. There were two explosions. The first is supposed to have been the bursting of the boiler used in condensing the sea water. The second was in the forward magazine. The vessel went down bow foremost in about eight fathoms of water in three minutes and nothing was seen after the second explosion except a few planks. The survivors saved their lives by jumping overboard after the first explosion. They were rescued by boats from sailing vessels and from the yacht of the Bishop of the Falkland Islands. Commander Evans jumped through a port hole and was taken from the water much lacerated by broken glass and wreckage. The engineer who escaped was not on duty.

Russia.

VIENNA, May 19.—During the sacking of Podwalyska on the Russian frontier several peasants were killed by falling rafters. Four grain warehouses and nearly all the buildings around the railway station were burned. At all the stations along the Southwestern Railroad houses were plundered and burned. Austrian frontier towns are crowded with fugitives. At Odessa the plundering continued the entire day. Rich Jews have fled and the poor ones are in a pitiable condition. At Kieff the synagogue was broken open and the congregation grossly maltreated. The Jewish quarter of the town looks as if it had been sacked by Tartars.

WHOLESALE SLAUGHTER.

A Farmer Kills His Wife and Sister, Shoots His Mother-in-Law and Kills Himself.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 19.—A fearful domestic tragedy occurred in Honey Creek township, this Vigo, county this morning. Alexander McPeters, Jr., killed his wife and sister-in-law, Ellen Baxom, shot at his mother-in-law and then killed himself. Domestic troubles and dissipation were the causes McPheeters had been married to his wife, whose maiden name was Alice Bloxon, about three years. They had a child two months old. The couple had frequently quarreled and the wife had applied for a divorce. Both families are prominent and respected and own fine farms. The murderer and suicide is supposed to have been partially deranged.

Highwaymen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GENESEE, ILL., May 19.—This morning while a farmer named Walter Ringhouse was returning to his home, three miles from the city, he was stopped in the road by three masked men who knocked him down and after robbing him of his money and watch unhitched his horses and made their escape, leaving the unfortunate victim tied to a tree a short distance from the road. As yet there is no clue to the robbers.

Not Continued.

CHICAGO, May 19.—B. B. Doyle, the skilful counterfeiter and handler of Government bonds, whose work deceived even Treasury and banking experts, applied to Judge Blodgett, of the United States Court, this morning for a continuance of his case on the ground that Spencer and other witnesses for the defense could not be here until September. The continuance was refused, and the case was set for trial on Thursday.

CHURCH CONVENTIONS.

The Baptists and Presbyterian Divines Now Holding Important Sessions.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 19.—The first of the National Baptist Anniversaries is now in progress in this city. The Publication Society to-day held its annual meeting, Geo. T. Hope, New York City, presiding. The report presented by the Rev. Dr. Griffiths, of Philadelphia, showed 149,250 copies of new publications printed; 234,830 copies of former publications and 2,081,606 of periodicals. Receipts, $42,137 73, of which $32,682,058 was in the business department, an increase of $45,549 62, and $94,317 15 in the missionary department, an increase of $26,023 65 mainly derived from special donations. The enlargement of the work of the society was reported as greater than in any former year, the new fields opened being Maryland, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington Territory, Oregon, New Mexico, Texas and Indian Territory, and there has been a great enlargement of the force of laborers in the fields previously occupied. The society has laborers now in forty-three of the forty-eight States and Territories. Addresses were subsequently delivered on the work in the extreme West and the Pacific Coast by the Rev. W. T. Crawford of Oregon, and the Rev. Dr. R. Osborn of North Adams, Mass., who has recently made a missionary trip over the Pacific States and Territories, the last named specially auguring aggressive work to check the spread of Mormonism. The denominational sermon was then preached by the Rev. John A. Broadus, D. D., of Louisville, Ky., which closed the morning's proceedings.

Southern Presbyterian Church.

STAUNTON, VA., May 19.—The General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church met here to-day. Rev. T. A. Hoyt, D.D., of Nashville, preached the opening sermon.

Among topics to be discussed will be those embraced under the titles, retrenchment and reform, and the revised directory of Church worship.

At the previous Assembly a committee was appointed to consider the latter topic. This committee will report to the present Assembly, and recommend as eminently proper that the church services should embrace the recitation of the Lord's prayer and creed and the reading of the decalogue. A form for burial, marriage and baptismal service will also be submitted. Should the report be adopted it does not carry with it an absolute obligation to use the forms. Ministers may use them or not at their discretion. The discussion of these topics will doubtless be protracted and animated.

THE TEMPERANCE PLATFORM.

Resolutions Adopted by the Ohio Convention Now in Session.

COLUMBUS, O., May 19.—The People's Temperance Reform met in the second day's session at 9 o'clock this morning, Professor Paine presiding. The first business transacted was to receive the report of the committee on resolutions. A long discussion followed. The substance of the resolutions adopted is as follows. That they (the temperance people) will not support any member of the late General Assembly who aided the defeat of the local option bill; that they will not support an administrative officer who is capable of using his influence against the enactment of laws which can only serve the public good; that they will not support again any State officer who aided in the defeat of the local option bill. Although the next election is of great importance for the reason that the next Legislature will redistrict the State, yet the temperance line will be drawn in favor of those men who will support temperance laws; that the State Constitution of the State shall be so amended as to empower the General Assembly to prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquors; that it is the duty of temperance men to attend all necessary meetings of both political parties and see that only temperance men are sent to the State and County Conventions; that if the great political parties fail to nominate candidates who are in favor of temperance, then a Convention will be called to nominate a State Temperance Ticket; that the co-operation of the National Woman's Temperance Union will be asked to help us in this work.

The Pacific Consolidation.

PARSONS, KAS., May 19.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad was held here yesterday—all the stock was represented. Resolutions approving of all mortgages and contracts made to the Gould management in reference to the M., K. and T. Road during the time they have had possession of the same to continue the construction of the road through to the City of Mexico and to increase the stock of the Consolidated Company $47,000,000 for that purpose were adopted. The following directors were elected. Jay Gould, Sidney Dillon, G. J. Forrest, Thos. T. Eckert, Wm. Bond, M. S. McReady, A. G. Dalmon, Sam Sloan, Thos. W. Pearsol, Fred. L. Ames, Frank S. Bond, R. D. Hays, H. C. Cross, C. H. Platt, David Kelso, the three latter being of Kansas. Jay Gould will continue President. H. B. Henson was re elected Secretary and Judge David Kelso elected Attorney for Kansas. The party has gone south on a tour of inspection of the Texas road.

THE "MOREY" LETTER.

The Charges Against Kenward Philp, Byrne and Others Nolle Pross'd.

NEW YORK, May 19.—On the indictment found against Kenward Philp and the charges against A. Byrne, Louis T. Pash and Joseph Hart, charged with libel in having written and published an article on the famous Morey letter: entitled "Lying and Sticking To It," final proceedings were taken this morning in the Court of Oyer and Terminer by the entry of a nolle pros.

Treasure Trove.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, ILLS., May 19.—Yesterday afternoon while George and William Roberts, two brothers, were removing an old log foundation from an old farm building they found buried under the logs an old tin box which was wrapped up in a piece of leather. Upon opening the box several letters were found addressed to William Harris, Hopkinsville, Ky., and a deed to a piece of property lying near that city. Upon further examination about $900 in the first issue of National greenbacks and $300 in gold and silver was found. How the money came to be hidden in this place remains a mystery, but from every indication it is thought the money has been secreted since the commencement of the war.

Coroner's Inquests.

The Coroner has rendered the following verdicts: In the case of Caroline Scholl, at Union Depot, death resulted from croup; in that of Heinrich Shotte, 68 years of age, who died suddenly at 3715 North Fourteenth street, death from cardiac apoplexy; Rosa Wahl, at 1121 North Thirteenth street, killed by falling lumber on Mullanphy street, died of compound fracture of the skull, the result of an accident.

The Northern Pacific.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Post says: Northern Pacific advances on the report that a satisfactory understanding has been reached by Villard and Billings and their respective representatives; that the present Superintendent of the Oregon Navigation Company, T. F. Oakes, is also to become General Manager of the Northern Pacific. This is the report and authentic information is unattainable.

SAN FRANCISCO LETTER.

The Glorious Climate of California—San Francisco Hotels and Theaters.

Special Cor. of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—To the Mississippivallian the Golden Gate and the sunny shores of the Pacific Coast have a luster invision that language fails to express. Little do they realize that the vast plains are as barren in appearance as an Illinois prairie after an autumnal fire, at least for one-half of the year. And more, that the vast mountains that skirt these pent-up plains are a bleak waste, actually repulsive to the sight from the ungainly appearance of the chaparral or shaggy brush that alone covers the most inviting spots on these huge masses of towering earth; their snow-capped peaks furnishing the only relief the wearied eye can find in the broad scope of vision possible from some selected peak in an atmosphere (during the foggy season which alike last half the year) that seems as lucid as thought on a morning following a bacchanalian reign of twelve or fourteen hours.

So much for the real contrast between what your beau ideal of California is and what the weary, worn tramp finds when he shall have "jumped" and been "fired" no less than a thousand times on his trans-continental trip, bearing meekly the gnaw of starvation for days in the hope of "some time" and "somehow" reaching that golden land where milk from the richly alfalfa fed cow flows by the gallon and honey from the mountain sage runs in sluices, only waiting to be barreled and shipped by the ton to some foreign shore; giving smallest heed to the possible collapsed condition of the little bee that toils out the sixteen-hour day of semi-tropical California in pumping his little stomach dry of the transparent sweetness that it gathers ere the morning dewdrop is closed from the snow-white sage blossom by the doubly refracted rays of an unshielded sun, with not a breath of air astir until by the favor of Neptune, for the benefit of trade, a monsoon is sent rushing over the sand-ridden plains—unless perchance a "norther" from the arid desert "sets in," upsetting the kindly project. In the latter event fancy yourself in a blinding snow-storm with a gale at forty knots an hour, the only perceptible difference being that instead of spotless snowflakes as light as air kissing your cheeks with a glow that melts them in the gush of innocence, you are caressed with pebbles from the size of a mite that rendezvous within the very eyelid to that of a hen's egg, hurling and bounding along the furious wake of the storm king, all nature blinded and blackened in the unhallowed haze, Old Sol refusing to penetrate the driving mist with a cheering ray.

THE MORE GENIAL PHASE,

however, glides in upon the average Californian who, after a few years, becomes weaned from the scenes of childhood, waxes warm from basking in the sunshine of perpetual prosperity and becomes wedded to the very rocks that before crushed every romantic emotion or ambitious desire. The very mountains in their grandeur tell of the underlying wealth; the broad, unbroken plains they hug tell of the spontaneous gush that only requires a planting to win a reaping. The colossal fortunes of a Stanford, a Crocker, a Sharon, a Wills, a Mackey, and a thousand others, tell too well the story of the Aladdin of the Pacific Coast to need further comment. And the tale is not yet concluded. The mighty prowess of Stanford, Crocker & Co. in their wonderful railroad combination is destined to give life and vigor to latent fields, to excite new-born anticipations and open up unknown bonanzas of untold millions. No brighter outlook was ever unfolded to the Pacific Coast in general nor California in special, not even in the days of '49, than is now budding and fast approaching full bloom. The mighty work is completed, the last spike has been driven that binds the East and West by two indissoluble bands, and, too, each traversing the richest mineral regions in the known world. And, if possible to estimate at so early a date, the latter will prove a total eclipse of the former. Arizona lies in a direct line of the great mineral belt of America, and covering the great South Pass or dismemberment of the Sierra Nevadas, 'tis butireasonable to suppose that croppings would appear. But since they appear on the surface stronger than ever before discovered, the conjecture bears well that the underlying strata is more than any locality ever before discovered. The rapid development of this new mineral region brings into requisition every character of product on this coast, such as during the past few years has been a drug in the market, owing to the excess of production to the home demand and the transportation to foreign ports having the effect of consuming the margin between the producer and consumer. But since this new market has been thrown open the products of this coast find a ready market of remunerative prices and the cry of hard times is fast becoming entombed as with the wail of the "sand lot," and with the return of prosperity, "good will toward all men" becomes a characteristic of California life; indeed, a more "whole souled" set of people never graced God's green earth than the genuine Pioneer or '49er.

The area of the State of California is estimated at 105,000,000, which are apportional about as follows: Agricultural and mineral lands, surveyed to last June, 53,784,416 acres; private grants patented, 8,161,140 acres; private grants not settled, 479,000 acres; Indian and military reservations, 318,631 acres; agricultural and mineral lands unsurveyed, 34,281,352 acres; swamps and overflowed lands surveyed, 1,610,037 acres; do unsurveyed, 110,714 acres; salt marsh and tide lands, around the bay of San Francisco, 100,000 acres; do around Humboldt Bay, 500, and there is no part of the earth capable of the variety of products that can be produced in this State. The northern portion is specially adapted to winter or temperate zone fruits, vegetables and cereals, excepting corn. The middle and southern merge into the richest tropical products, and in the rich low lands of the southern part I have see as fine growth of corn, producing 125 bushels to the acre, as can be grown in any part of the world. The orange groves of the South are particularly attractive. Since the pallyxera has invaded the vineyards of France the wine interest of California has become the most profitable industry save probably that of wheat and wool, but bids fair within a very few years to surpass even these, which have been the overpowering industries of this coast for many years. Every portion of the State is accessible by convenient communication by rail, water or stage, and are unsurpassed in the world. Even in this city the enterprising Montgomerys furnish square meals for 16⅔ cents each and good lodgings at $1 a week. And when I say a square meal I do not mean a stinted course of a single dish of meat, but a variety of such as for breakfast and supper ham and eggs, beefsteaks, pork and mutton chops, potatoes, cakes, coffee, etc., and for dinner soup, a variety of stews, a la modes and fricassees, with roast beef and mutton, stuffed veal and heart, with the usual complement of fresh vegetables the year round always in season, concluding with dessert, coffee and fruits, the latter of which California particularly claims championship in. This remarkably cheap hotel is known as Montgomery's Hotel, and has ample accommodation for 400 to 500 guests.

The Montgomery Bros. are also proprietors of the American Exchange Hotel, strictly first-class in every particular, where every accommodation that heart could desire is furnished; where board and rooms range from six to eight dollars per week, or one to one and a quarter dollars per day. Now this seems marvelous.

THEATRICAL.

Miss Kate Thaxter is playing an engagement at the Baldwin, while Robson and Crane are doing the funny business at the Bush Street Theater. The houses are good and all are in fine spirits. Cole's Circus will be here next week on their "return from foreign lands." Sherman's trained horses are entertaining large crowds nightly and are justly popular—six in number, four of which are the most sagacious animals I have ever seen, their performances being by the word of command and not by routine. They do more than 150 tricks and are California bred horses, although of thoroughbred pedigree, making them doubly dear to their patrons and admirers.

Well, if you do not tire of this I will write you something about San Francisco next time. "RAMBLER."

A WOMAN ON THE GIBBET.

Sophy Perovsky's Speech Before Being Hanged in St. Petersburg.

From the New York Sun.

On the trial of Sophy Perovsky, the Russian woman of noble family recently hanged in St. Petersburg as a regicide, when leave was finally given her to speak in her own behalf, she said:

"In 1869, being then sixteen years old, and having gone through the usual school studies, I fitted myself for a teacher. In 1870 I taught a village school. I soon found out that the Government by its system of despotic interference with the affairs of the peasantry was putting insurmountable obstacles in the way of their normal, intellectual, moral and economical development. In 1872 I was forced to leave the school, and I joined the revolutionary party. Since then I have served the cause. Several times I was arrested and tried for taking part in the revolutionary propaganda. In 1878, without any trial, but by administrative order, I was transported to the province of Olonotzk. I escaped, dropped my name, and procured false passes. My part in the Moscow explosion of 1879 is known to the Court. Since June, 1880, I have been living in St. Petersburg with a woman whose name I don't want to give here. Gellaboff came to live in my rooms, and by order of the Executive Committee we began preparations for the event of March 13. Being an agent of the committee, I knew everything about the means to be resorted to. I was charged with the duty of finding out where and when the Czar could be met with. In the morning of March 13 I brought two bombs into the rooms of Hessy Helfman. But whence the bombs were brought and how many persons were charged with the duty of throwing them I don't choose to say. I drew the map in order to show the station appointed for each of my comrades, and it was I to whom the bomb throwers had to look for directions on the place of action. I made signs with my handkerchief, and they moved and acted according to our agreement. I had no bomb myself, for we had not enough of them for all of us. I stood on the other side of the Catherine Canal and observed the effect of both explosions. That is all I want to say of the practical part which I took in the revolutionary movement.

"As to the motives that induced me to join the revolutionary party I can say this: The principal task of our party is to awaken in the people a consciousness that they have the right and power to govern themselves. To solve this intellectual problem our party hoped to gradually raise the intellectual and moral level of the people, to improve their economical condition, and so to develop this consciousness of their civil rights; and therefore the members of the party settled among the peasantry in different capacities and carried on a peaceful, social propaganda. But the Government, by a series of severe repressive measures, made our peaceful work impossible. Then our party, after a long hesitation, was forced to undertake a political struggle against the Government as the chief obstacle in our way. Once on the political arena we could not help adopt the terrorist policy. Our relentless persecution of the late Czar was, on one side, an answer to his relentless persecution of our party, and on the other it was the result of our conviction that he would never change his ruinous internal policy. I admit that I am a member of the party of Narodnaia Volia (the Will of the People), and am an agent of the Executive Committee. The party of Narodnaia Volia is far from having a desire to impose on the public and on the people at large any institutions whatever, or any form of government; it has only a deep conviction that by and by the people and society will adopt its social ideas and will realize them. I consider it my duty to say a few words for some of my comrades. Hessy Helfman, being in charge of the conspirators' rooms, was connected with the party of Narodnaia Volia, but she had no knowledge of or part in the terrorist acts. Mikhailoff, too, had no part in these acts, took no share in the preparations for the event of March 13, and was not among those who were charged with the duty of throwing the bombs; in short he had no part whatever in the event of March 13.

"Many, very many accusations have been heaped upon us by the Prosecutor. As regards the practical part of these accusations, I will not say a word; I have admitted all of them. But I most solemnly protest against his accusing me and my comrades of immorality, cruelty and contempt of public opinion. I am sure that those who know our life and the conditions under which we have had to act will not throw a stone at us—will not accuse us of immorality or cruelty. And now for my single and last request: I do not ask mercy, but I demand that in dealing with me no favor shall be shown because of my sex."

She Wouldn't Have It.

From the Galveston News.

She sat at the table of a fashionable watering place, and she wore a crimson satin dress cut as close to the shoulder as law and shoulders allow. She swept the air with her bare arm, and as her fingers were covered with rings she seemed to bring down the stars every time. She plunged her fingers into one dish after another and wiped her mouth on the back of her hand. One of her neighbors quietly passed her a napkin and she picked it up as quietly and said: "Here! quick! somebody has lost a handkerchief. I never carry anything as coarse as that."

FASHION FRIPPERIES.

One of the really beautiful things imported this year for the first time is pure white pongee silk. It washes as well as white muslin, but, as it shrinks a little, it should be wet before making it up.

The little tables upon which a single vase or a choice book can just find comfortable lodging are always a pretty addition to a parlor, and it is a piece of good fortune that they can now be bought for a very small price.

Women who can afford the new style of stockings made of black and white Brussels lace, with shoes of the same material as the dress and having large diamond buckles on the toes, wear their gowns very short in front.

It is almost time for lawn tennis costumes to appear. For these will be preferred bunting, crash or nun's veiling, leaving to English ladies the tennis flannels which may be endurable in England, but are far too warm for our climate.

What is home without an awning? Have awnings by all means, and gayly striped at that, whether you pass the summer in the country or by the seaside, or have to make the best of it in the city amid the reflections of burning bricks.

The fashionable baby carriage with those who have more money than they know what to do with is a willow basket on wheels, lined with blue satin and having a blue satin parasol covered with white lace, under which baby reclines as though he, or she, were heir to the British dominions or the Sandwich Islands.

The sudden changes in the fashions of women are very embarrassing to fashionable men about to marry. Thus, at present big mouths and blue eyes are the height of the style, and small mouths and black eyes are not at all in demand. But suppose the latter should shortly become the rage again, what could a man do with his big mouthed and blue eyed wife. Take her into society he could not, and he would find it difficult to get rid of her in any way.

DETECTIVES AT WEDDINGS.

Gentlemen in Faultless Attire Who Loiter Near the Presents.

From the New York Sun.

There are in New York a hundred or more weddings in the course of a year, where there is a crush of guests in full dress, where ladies who have passed their youth feel it allowable to wear a wealth of diamonds, and where the displays of presents surpass the show-cases of fashionable jewelers. These weddings, and other social gatherings of the same class of persons, are a very paradise of thieves and pickpockets, when, as occasionally happens, they can gain admission in the guise of a guest. This, as will be imagined, few professionals can do without the risk of being bowed to the door by the host as strangers in unwarranted dress coats; yet many simple and shrewd devices are used to maintain a footing once obtained in such assemblages. Efforts are made to scrape acquaintanceships. References are boldly made to some previous social assemblage. The thief must have special gifts and a special training.

Yet it is not professional thieves that those who get up fashionable entertainments chiefly fear. The most dangerous class, because the most numerous, are included among the invited guests, and are called, when detected, kleptomaniacs.

For almost every large and fashionable wedding there is a request made upon Inspector Byrnes, in charge of the detective bureau at the police central office, to watch the array of presents, and in general to protect the house and its guests from loss by theft. Among the central office detectives on whom this duty frequently falls is George W. Lanthier. He is a young man of good address and appearance, who wears a fine diamond in his shirt front, and whose clothes fit him. His fellow detectives say that when he is arrayed in a Prince Albert coat, with silk facings, for an afternoon wedding, there is nothing left to be asked for by the most critical observer, but when he appears attired in full costume, for an evening wedding or reception, language fails. Mr. Lanthier was sought out yesterday. He said his duties were simple, and for most part agreeable.

"The first thing I do," he said, "when I go to a reception is to take a look through the house, up and down stairs, in order to acquaint myself with the different rooms as well as with the disposition of valuable articles. For this reason I generally go a short time before the guests are expected. While the guests are arriving I usually stand in the hall to watch them as they enter. I am very apt to know a professional thief by his face. Where the presents are very numerous and valuable, I generally have the smaller ones, such as the diamonds and other jewelry, which a person could pocket and carry away readily, put on a table by themselves. Then I take a seat near them. I am supposed, by those who see me, to be a guest. If anybody guesses otherwise, I am contented they should have their opinion. I inform myself about the presents, and when guests come up to inspect them, they naturally fall to talking to express their admiration. I am able to tell them about the presents. One guest, therefore, sees me talking with another, and he is not likely to remark that I remain in one part of the room the afternoon or evening. If I sat still and said nothing, I would soon become an object of notice.

"I have never," continued Mr. Lanthier, "been compelled to make an arrest at a reception, although I have attended many dozens of them, nor have I ever seen an attempt to steal a valuable present. If a professional thief gets into the assembly by chance, he probably knows what my presence means, and if anybody else has any designs on the presents, he discovers after a time that they are never left alone.

"I have seen many very brilliant arrays of presents; large diamonds and rubies of very great value, chests of silverware, pyramids of the finest cut-glass decanters, antique cups and costly fans. I never saw a lady in such an assembly whose jewelry was guarded by a detective; but I have seen some of middle age and older, various parts of whose dresses were decorated with great clusters of diamonds. To these small weddings and receptions come the same set over and over again, and a person who attends them soon learns to know their faces and names.

"As to personal treatment, the guests at the assemblies I have attended have always addressed me with courtesy, and I do not see how they could have done otherwise, even when they knew my business, for I never sought acquaintanceship, while I have always been willing to talk on any subject I knew anything about, and I never ask questions about matters that don't concern me.

Stories are told by detectives of ladies, whose families are of the highest respectability, whom they have pointed out to the givers of entertainments as having stolen valuable presents. In several cases related to the reporter, the valuables were recovered under threats of arrest, and scandals resulted. In others, the host was unwilling to make accusations preferring to avoid the scandal that would follow an exposure. In one case a lady fainted when she was excused. She would not confess, and she was not searched, but it was afterwards said that a diamond ring was returned by her father, an action which the detectives who told the story criticised as inexcusably simple on the father's part if he had in view merely the reputation of his daughter. It is said that several series of thefts have been committed by young men so fascinated with society life that they lived beyond their means, and at last were driven, by what appeared to them necessity, to steal.

Two or three years ago a young man of this class purloined several watches and other valuable articles from the houses of Chief Justice George Shea, of the Marine Court; John D. Townsend and others, at a series of entertainments running nearly through the season. A warrant was issued for him, but he escaped arrest. He had formerly moved in good society of right, but he had introduced himself at the first of this series of entertainments by sheer impudence. He committed so many thefts that at last he was watched, but even then he escaped with his booty without being detected, and it was said that the evidence against him was largely inferential. His flight, however, confirmed it. This case was publicly exposed at the time. Only a few weeks ago a polite gentleman, who appeared in the guise of a guest at a fashionable entertainment, succeeded in making off with a valuable assortment of overcoats.

A Picturesque Old Pioneer.

From the Del Norte Prospector.

For the past six months Col. Pfeiffer has been bedfast and at no time have hopes been entertained of his recovery. On Wednesday, April 6, 1881, at about 11 o'clock, he died. His last request was that he be buried quietly and unostentatiously. He was interred among the foothills overlooking his beautiful ranche, with no crowd or ceremony, only five being present.

Col. Albert H. Pfeiffer was born in Friesland, on the coast of Holland, in October, 1822. His father is, or was, a Lutheran minister and his mother was of Scotch descent, from a Scotch noble family. He left his native country when twenty-two years of age and came directly to the west as a soldier in the ranks. He married a Spanish girl of Abequin, New Mexico, when about thirty-four years old, by whom he had two or three children, only one of whom is alive.

It was at this point in his life when he gained national celebrity. He was in command of Fort Macrae and was taken ill. There are some hot springs located about six miles from the fort and near the Rio Grande River. Himself, wife and another lady, with an escort of ten soldiers, went there to bathe, and while he was still in the bath the Apache Indians rushed down on them, whooping and yelling like the demons that they were, and frightened the soldiers so that they took to their heels and escaped; but not so with the ladies—both were shot dead. Col. Pfeiffer leaped to the bank, grasped his rifle and fired, killing one of the fiends; but the odds was too great, and his only escape was in running and plunging into the river, which he did, but not before two arrows, one of which was poisoned, had been lodged in his left side and leg. He managed to swim the river, found medical aid, and soon recovered from the wounds. Then it was that the Indians found a terror in our hero. Many were the red fiends that fell victims to his unerring rifle. He fought in any capacity offered. He would at one time be at the head of a band of Indians who were at war with the Apaches, then again he would muster up a body of Mexicans or whites and go on the war-path, thirsting for vengeance. The principal part of his fighting was done under Kit Carson and he was an associate of Bill Bent, St. Vrain, Maxwell and others of a like stamp. From the time of the death of his wife he led a roving life, was off to every new discovery and wherever he could be of use to white men.

He came to this valley about thirty years ago, and described it as being the finest country he ever saw. All along the Rio Grande and on the smaller streams game of all kinds abounded, and the Indian roamed at will and was monarch of all he surveyed.

A Night's Adventure in a Chimney.

From the New York Sun.

About 11 o'clock Sunday evening James Murray sat smoking a pipe in his room on the first floor of 56 Oak street, while Mrs. Murray read to him. Suddenly a scuffling noise, accompanied by a sound like a stifled talk, astonished them.

"I guess it's rats," said Mr. Murray, after reflection, puffing at his pipe.

"Rats," said Mrs. Murray, indignantly, "don't curse and swear. It's burglars, James."

A minute later a shower of soot came down the chimney into the faces of both, and a voice came down the chimney saying, "Let me out! Open the blank, blank, blankity, blanked door, and be blanked to you! It will be 12 o'clock soon."

"Halloo, there," cried Murray.

"Halloo, be blanked," responded the voice. "Open the door or I'll kick it open."

"He'll kick nothing," said Mr. Murray, with a wink to his wife as he put on his shoes, relit his pipe, and set out for a policeman. When the policeman had been found the puzzle was to find out which floor the stranger was nearest to, his profanity being quite as distinct on one floor as on the other. No fires, luckily for the man who wanted to get out, were burning in the front of the house. A rope was let down the chimney and he caught it, and was hauled up two or three times, but each time the rope slipped and away he went again. As a last resort the firemen were sent for, and a hook and ladder company came tearing to the rescue. With axes and crowbars they broke in the chimney on the top floors without finding anybody, and began to suspect ventriloquism. A hole was made on the first floor in Mrs. Murray's room, and then the swearing was distinctly heard again. The firemen enlarged the hole, and soon a man as black as possible was dragged out.

He turned out to be James Walsh, a cartman, who lives at 54 Oak street. He said he had heard a woman down the chimney crying for help and had gone down after her. It appeared that he had been suffering from delirium tremens. He was badly bruised around his shoulders and other parts of his body, and was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital. Walsh was imprisoned in the chimney more than three hours. The landlord came into the station house with a long face yesterday morning, and wanted to know who was going to pay for the damage to his house.

A Chinese Dwarf.

New York Special to Cincinnati Gazette.

Chee Mah, a celebrated Chinese dwarf, arrived from Europe yesterday on the steamship Italy. He is a native of Fingpoo, China, where he was born forty-four years ago. His exact height is two feet, which leaves a difference between himself and his fellow countryman, Chang, of exactly seventy-two inches, of course in the latter's favor. For some eight months these two whims of nature traveled through Europe together, drawing large crowds wherever they went. This is the dwarf's first visit to America. He grows a thick goatee and a well cultivated mustache. The top of his head is somewhat bald, but well fringed by long jet black hair. His face is round and full, and his eyes betoken determination. Both his hands and feet are small, even for so diminutive a person. Under the armpits and across the chest he measures within a fraction of his height, while a No. 5 hat fits him loosely, and his boots measure barely five inches in length. His father, he says, is six feet high, his mother is five feet six inches, and his sister five feet eleven inches, and all living.

Chee Mah is a good linguist and converses fluently in English, French, and German.

Dubious Relics.

From the New York Tribune.

Another instance has come to light of the dubiousness of antiquarian relics. In the archives at Harrisburg, Penn., has long been carefully preserved what was supposed to be the original charter granted by Charles II. to William Penn. Various fac similes of this precious document have been published, purchased and treasured; but it now appears that the supposed charter is merely a copy of the original document. In one corner in small letters is the name of the copyist, with the date of the copy, which is fifty years after the granting of the original charter. The seal is not the proper royal one, but that of the State of New York during the reign of George II.—a seal not cast until forty-six years after the granting of the charter to William Penn. The members of the Pennsylvania Historical Society are now anxious to know what has become of the original charter. It may not be generally known that certain real estate in Pennsylvania is still held by the Penn family, now represented by Colonel Stuart.

PUNCH IN AMERICA.

A regular bonanza: Her hand was evidently not on good terms with soap and water, but was heavily loaded with jewelry. "By George!" whispered Fogg, "there's some rich digging over there. I should say that dirt would assay a dollar an ounce."

Sporting news: "I consider myself," said a hard-looking citizen, "a pretty fair judge of horseflesh and ——" "I should so remark," retorted a bystander, "but where under the canopy did you get a horse with so little flesh on him as the one you drove down this morning?

Philosophy and fact: "The girl," says Labouchere, who has had experience in these things, "who smiles with closed lips is to be feared as well as loved. Mona Lisa smiled with closed lips." It is always well, however, before drawing conclusions about Mona's character on the strength of this to consult Mona Lisa's dentist.

Something immense: "Just think of it!" exclaimed Jones; "Pingrey's new block is one thousand metres long!" "Is that so?" asked Fogg, adding "By the way, Jones, how long is a metre?" "Blamed if I know," said Jones, "but judging from the distance my gas metre covers every month, it must be something immense."

Fashion item: "Which had you rather be, a twinkling star in the heavens or a comet that with its broad train of fire sweeps in majestic course through unknown space?" "I should prefer by all means to wear a train," said she, "but not in unknown space. It would never be described in the newspapers."

Heffelspin at home: "I do believe, Mr. Heffelspin," said his wife, "that you mean to kill me with your everlasting conundrums. Why is a feline sitting up straight like Niagra? You knew I couldn't guess it." "Well, I will tell you," rejoined Heffelspin. "Because it is a cat erect." Mrs. Heffelspin pulled down her spectacles and started for the broom, but Heffelspin had business down town just then.

Demand and supply: Up on the railroad between Galveston and Austin they tell that Jay Gould and his party, while in Texas, stopped at a farm house along the railroad to get some fresh eggs and milk. The party furnishing the refreshments wanted $60 a dozen for his eggs. Jay Gould remarked that eggs must be scarce to ask that much for them. "There are plenty of eggs here," responded the genial host, "but fellers like you that can afford to pay such prices are scarce. That's why eggs are worth $50 a dozen on this joyous occasion."

AUF WIEDERSEHEN.

Until we meet again! That is the meaning
Of the familiar words that men repeat
At parting in the street.
Ah, yes, till then! but when death intervening
Rends us asunder, with what ceaseless pain
We wait for the Again!

The friends who leave us do not feel the sorrow
Of parting as we feel it who must stay
Lamenting day by day,
And knowing, when we wake upon the morrow,
We shall not find in its accustomed place
The one beloved face.

It were a double grief, if the departed,
Being released from earth, should still retain
A sense of earthly pain;
It were a double grief if the true hearted
Who loved us here, should on the further shore
Remember us no more.

Believing, in the midst of our afflictions,
That death is a beginning, not an end,
We cry to them, and send
Farewells, that better might be called predictions,
Being foreshadowings of the future, thrown
Into the vast Unknown.

Faith overleaps the confines of our reason,
And if by faith, as in old times was said,
Women received their dead
Raised up to life, then only for a season
Our partings are, nor shall we wait in vain
Until we meet again!

DRUNKARDS AND DIPSOMANIACS.

Tests for Telling Habitual Drinkers From the Victims of Disease.

From the New York Sun.

There has been of late a good deal of discussion concerning habitual drunkenness, much sympathy being expressed for the inebriate, on the supposition that his habit of dram drinking has become a disease. To say that a man is "dipsomaniac" has been so widely accepted as, at least, a partial excuse for intoxication, that it has become desirable to ascertain where to draw the line between the drinking man who is fully responsible for his acts and the one who is not. For this purpose a reporter visited a doctor who has had considerable experience in the treatment of alcoholism.

"At what point does the drinking man become a dipsomaniac?" the reporter asked.

"A man who is called a hard drinker," said the Doctor, "may never become a dipsomaniac. There is a wide difference between a bad habit and a mania."

"Do you mean that habitual drunkards who have tried in vain for years to break the habit are not dipsomaniacs?"

"A large percentage of habitual drunkards are not dipsomaniacs, though they may wish to be so considered. While it is true that the dipsomaniac may eventually become an habitual drunkard, habitual drunkenness is not, and does not eventually lead to dipsomania. The dipsomaniac is such long before he becomes an inveterate drinker; that is, if he ever becomes one at all, which by no means follows. The common drunkard becomes and continues as he is, through habit. We feel sorry for the dipsomaniac as we do for any other insane person, but we can have no very deep commiseration for the ordinary inebriate, who can generally break up his habit more easily than he is willing to acknowledge."

"What, then, is the difference between the dipsomaniac and the drunkard?"

"Dipsomania is a form of moral insanity, a monomania. It is a mental disease, whose most marked symptoms is a morbid craving for stimulants, an insatiable appetite for them which is wholly beyond the control of the sufferer. Such an individual may have a disgust for alcohol and even be noted in general for abstemiousness; yet, when the desire makes itself felt, self-respect, social position, and all good influences lose their power, and he becomes practically another man. Esquirol tells of a merchant who became a dipsomaniac every winter, thus annually reducing himself to beggary. The attack being ended, he resumed business and made money until another impulse set in."

"What is the cause?"

"It is not always easy to get at it. In the acute form, dipsomania is found in persons predisposed to mental derangement, and may follow any great moral disturbance. Hereditary tendencies to mental anxiety may be so great that small quantities of alcohol will start up the disease. Other morbid conditions, such as a tendency to suicide, often supervene. In drawing a distinction between the two classes of drinkers, Trelat, of Paris, observes (De la Folle Lucide, p. 151): 'Drunkards drink when they find a favorable occasion; in dipsomania the patient drinks only at the moment of the access.'"

"Can the desire of a person to drink almost anything as a stimulant, when deprived of alcohol, be taken as an evidence of dipsomania?"

"It could be, if taken in connection with other corroboratory symptoms, particularly if the person were what is called a periodical inebriate. One of my patients, undoubtedly a dipsomaniac, used to steal common alcohol from my spirit lamp; another would drink largely from a can of kerosene, and a third nearly killed himself by drinking a quantity of dilute carbolic acid. Any of them will drink of such fiery fluids as cholera mixtures, and ammonia and ether are readily taken by them. The only wonder is that they do not kill themselves oftener by such experiments."

"What steps would you advise in order to ascertain to a certainty whether a person was or was not dipsomaniac?"

"In many cases the difference will be apparent enough. In order, however, to prevent injustice being done, I should, in all cases of doubt, consult a physician who had made such matters a specialty. Exhaustive inquiry should be made as to any sign of mental derangement in the patient, also as to whether any hereditary morbid tendencies existed. The same difficulties exist in distinguishing some cases of habitual drunkenness from dipsomania as arise in separating the kleptomaniac from the common thief. In the greater number of cases, however, I think you will be able to distinguish, from the hints you have gathered to-night, the true dipsomaniac from the inveterate drinker."

"Do you not think that great injustice is often done, not only by society at large, but by the courts, in judgments of drinkers?"

"Unquestionably."

"What is the remedy?"

"Nothing presents itself to my mind as likely to offer much aid, except the fuller enlightenment upon such questions, not only of our magistrates, but of the people themselves. There are many persons, drinkers and non-drinkers, now punished as criminals, who should be treated physiologically as diseased persons. But none need enlightened, discriminative treatment more than those who drink."

An Ex-Governor's Scandal.

Springfield (Mass.) Special to Chicago Times.

A high-life scandal is causing considerable comment at East Hampton, the parties directly concerned being Lieut.-Gov. Horatio G. Knight and a female operative in the button-shop of which he is manager. Gov. Knight is one of the wealthiest and most prominent men in the town. Till recently he was President of the Board of Trustees of Williams College. He is concerned in several business enterprises of the town, and has ranked high in the estimation of the townspeople. His mansion stands near that of the late Mr. Williston, and his face has always been prominent among the distinguished men who annually attend the commencements of the seminary. Several years ago he was elected Lieutenant-Governor of the State on the ticket with Gov. Rice, and since then his name has been more prominent than ever in the State. The woman with whom his name is now so unpleasantly associated is Ella R. Carpenter, commonly known as Nellie Carpenter, a factory girl of attractive appearance but unsavory reputation. About a year ago rumors began to circulate about Gov. Knight's improper intimacy with Miss Carpenter. The latter lived alone in a house on Main street, and the Governor was said to visit her at all times of day and night. Finally the matter became so much town talk that some of the officers of the Payson Congregational Church, of which Mr. Knight is a prominent member, called on the Governor to put him on his guard. He immediately confessed that he had been indiscreet, and promised to be more careful. He said that some time before he had heard that some of the girls in the button-shop were going to the bad, and, calling them into his office, he had given them good advice. In this way he had become interested in Miss Carpenter. He claimed that his motives were pure, and that he was guilty of nothing immoral. The officers of the church let the matter drop here; but Gov. Knight's actions since then have forced them to take more and decided action. They held a meeting to-day and formulated their charges against him. A committee was appointed and given power to call a meeting soon to take action on the matter. Gov. Knight will be expected to attend this meeting and defend himself. He is now away on a business trip in the West. He has written to the church officers asking that the matter may be allowed to rest for the present, saying that he can yet explain everything.

Where Postal Cards Are Made.

Cleveland Herald Springfield (Mass.) Letter.

For the past eight years Springfield and Holyoke have had the contract for making and shipping the enormous amount of postal cards used in the United States. To give an idea of the quantity shipped from this point can best be understood when I say that a box car, used exclusively for the postal service, is sent from Holyoke to Springfield twice a week loaded with postal cards, and from this point they are distributed through the mail routes to all parts of the country. The orders for postal cards are sent from the various post offices first to Washington, and then a duplicate forwarded to Holyoke, with directions for shipping. A large stock is kept on hand, put up in wooden boxes of various sizes, strapped with iron bands and deposited in a fire-proof room. The cardboard is made at Holyoke, the printing, counting out, packing and shipping under the supervision of a postal agent appointed by the Postmaster General every four years. The agent for the past eight years has been John N. Tyner, of Indiana, brother of ex-Congressman and Assistant Postmaster General Tyner, and who is well known in Northern Ohio, having recently taken for his wife Miss Steinbacher, from Akron. Tyner has just resigned and gone into the business of manufacturing envelopes at Holyoke, and Capt. D. O. Judd, of this city, who has been his assistant ever since the agency was established, has been promoted in accordance with civil service. The postal card contract has just been given out to the lowest bidder for the next four years, at a very low price. When the first contract was given out in 1873 there were fourteen bidders, the lowest being the Morgan Envelope Company of this city, at $1 39⅞ per 1,000. When the bids were open in 1877, there being twenty bidders, the lowest was sixty-nine and a half cents per 1,000, from Woolworth & Graham. The same firm have secured the next four years' contract, against fifteen bidders, at fifty-four and a half cents per 1,600. It will be seen that the price must now be down to a pretty fine thing, or else there was a large margin of profits in 1873. There is probably no place in the country where the cards can be made so cheap, or where fine writing paper is produced so cheaply, as at Holyoke, which is now called the "Paper City," more than one-third of all the fine writing paper in the country being made there.

Rogers, the Sculptor.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

Randolph Rogers, the American sculptor in Rome, is thus minutely described: "In height Mr. Rogers is five feet eight and a half inches: his eyes are gray and indicate quickness, penetrative decision; his mouth is furthest removed from that type which is soured about the ends; his hair, somewhat gray, is of vigorous growth; his forehead is broad, high and well built out over the eyes; the nose is good size and straight; the whole head large, and a beard worn after the Da Vinci type; the shoulders broad, the chest immense. He weighs 230 pounds; if he ever has been criticised he has simply laughed and grown fat. In allusion to his appearance, he said that when he came to Rome, over thirty years ago, he was an Apollo, but that now he is only a Bacchus; his whole appearance indicates most temperate and simple habits. He works, as a rule, all the time, at ideal work when he can, and at the more mechanical parts of his avocation when he must. He thinks nine-tenths of the work in all professions and in all departments of business is drudgery. He wears the traditional artist's cap and an outer garment of woolen cloth, cut loose and half flowing. His manner is genial without affectation, free from snobbery and unspoiled by lionizing; hit step is light and quick."

New York's Truant Children.

Letter to the Troy Times.

I have referred to the department of lost children, in addition to which is that which looks after truants. Nine men are detailed for this purpose. They visit the public schools daily and obtain the names of absentees, and search for those whose parents desire it. This is necessary, because there is in this city so great a faculty for juvenile concealment. A boy can run away effectually from home and remain for months in this city without its being known. Some scholars have been arrested for persistent absence from school and forced to attend, while others have been sent to the asylum and reformatories. During last year 272 scholars were committed to these places, and almost as many more were arrested and taken to school, while 4,500 truants were brought back to regular attendance. Speaking of children it is wonderful to see how rapidly they develop into the worst class of crime. The boy George Petrie hast just been sent by his father to the reformatory for attempting to burn the house. Although only nine he is pronounced incorrigible. Boy thieves are now a leading feature in police arrests, and the worst aspect of the case (as the matron of the Tombs told me) is the utter indifference which these miserable children display.

An Iron Bridge Built in Two Hours.

Bucyrus (O.) Special to Cincinnati Gazette.

Several weeks ago the various pieces for a complete iron bridge over the Sandusky were brought here by the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Company. A scaffolding was erected next the old bridge, and the new structure put together on it. Saturday afternoon, all being in readiness and every part in place, the old bridge was removed and the new placed in position. This was accomplished in two hours and fifteen minutes. At 12:30 the last train crossed the old bridge, which the workmen immediately commenced to remove. Then the new structure was gradually drawn into permanent position by means of two large windlasses, one placed at each end of the bridge, and each worked by four men. This operation occupied eighteen minutes. Then the connecting rails were laid, the roadway filled in firm, and at 2:45 the first train passed over the new bridge. Though the company wished the removal to be effected privately, about 200 persons collected to witness the scene, which will long be remembered.

A Cannon to Shoot Ten Miles.

From the Reading Eagle.

The making of the patterns for the Lyman-Haskell accelerating or multicharge gun, at the Scott foundry of the Reading Iron Works, was begun this morning. The gun will be twenty-five feet long and have a bore six inches in diameter. Along the bore four pockets will be located, in each of which a charge of powder will be placed, with the view of accelerating the speed of the ball after it leaves the chamber of the gun and during its progress through the bore. Experts who have seen the drawings and have given the subject of the manufacture of heavy ordnance a study have expressed the opinion that the gun will throw a ball a distance of ten to twelve miles, whereas five miles is a good range for the best cannon. The charge of powder will be 130 pounds, and the weight of shot 150 pounds. It is calculated that a shot from the gun will penetrate through two feet of solid wrought iron.

"What is it?" asked the telegraph editor, folding a sheet of manifold into a small pellet and firing it at a bald headed man on the street below.

"Well, you know this hyre, new book of Jeff Davises'—this Lost Cause business and that—I don't see why a man shouldn't give way to sentiment and romance occasionally and pay for that book in Confederate scrip. I don't see how Jeff can refuse the currency that he played out on us, 'n you bet you, I'm just going to build a dobey house with 'Lost Causes.'"

PERIHELION PERILS.

The Planets Swerving the Sun Off His Center Nearly a Million Miles,

Producing a Marked Decrease in the Terrestrial Temperature,

And Playing Havoc With Human Health.

The conjunction of the planets with the sun, it is reasoned by those who have made it a careful study, is having a very marked effect on that luminary. It is estimated that the sun has been drawn from its place 700,000 miles. If this is so, the effect on the earth must be marked. As a matter of fact it is said by meteorologists that the average temperature during the past winter has been several degrees lower than for many years, and the effect upon humanity has been seen in a great increase of mortality. The winter has been a long one and a cold one. The summer promises to be a long and hot one. This means increased mortality. It is therefore of the greatest importance that the health should be carefully guarded. Do not permit the slightest approach of disease. It has become an admitted fact that nothing so thoroughly restores and keeps the body in perfect health as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

D. W. Bartine, M. D., D. D., who resides in Orange, N. J., after a careful experience, has given the following facts to the public:

Some three months ago I found myself suffering from Bright's disease—Albuminuria. By the use of a reliable test I found albumen in the urine, and in some slight degree in a few instances in a coagulated state. I suffered from dropsy, particularly about the ankles, slight pains about the kidneys, a derangement of digestion, great dryness of the skin, at times much thirst, and of course a gradual failing of strength. This was about the state of things when I commenced using Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I took about six tablespoonfuls every day for a week, when I found all my symptoms decidedly improved, and at the end of two weeks it was difficult to detect any trace of albumen. Having imprudently taken cold, I had a slight relapse some two weeks ago, when I began again using the medicine, and am now as well as ever.

The conclusion from the above statement and the facts which accompany it must be evident. Disease is in our midst, and we must guard ourselves in time. A little precaution may save severe sickness, perhaps death.

TO THE CAPITALISTS OF ST. LOUIS.

Having just returned from one of the most active mining camps in Nevada, where I have been steadily watching the changes and developments in said camp for 22 months, I am now prepared to offer for the consideration of any of my friends or others a mine that is already developed to the depth of 400 feet with drifts and levels at each hundred feet, well timbered, supplied with tramways, etc., and most favorably located immediately next to and between the two most noted mines in the camp. Hoisting works and ten-stamp mill are a part of the property; and as pay streaks are in sight from which I had seven assays ranging from $50 to $1,600 per ton, and a late working test of three tons producing over $800, I can conscientiously recommend it for investment.

If sufficient interest is manifested by those able to assist in such an enterprise, I am empowered to form a joint stock company in St. Louis and will be happy to confer with any gentleman who desires information. If unsuccessful shall proceed to Chicago or New York in fourteen days.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE CITY

EVEN the worst epidemics run their race. The Illinois Legislature is drawing to a close.

IN another column Mr. M. W. WILLIS, a gentleman of culture, pays a deserved tribute to the real benefactor of St. Louis, Mr. WAYMAN CROW.

THE idiotic shop-boy with his broom on the dusty sidewalk is the crying nuisance now of the early morning hours. He should be provided with a sprinkling-pot.

LE DOOK, the seed fiend of the Agricultural Bureau, has resigned, by way of supporting CONKLING. The best of the business is that his resignation has been accepted.

GRANT'S letter to Senator JONES in behalf of CONKLING is given in our dispatches to-day. "The time has come for us virile men to stick together," said the old juryman in the breach of promise case.

WE think we detect a disposition on the part of the press of the United States to refer to Senator CONKLING. We have just parted with a Chicago journal that devotes twenty-seven of its valuable columns to his service.

KILPATRICK, the bloody-shirt campaigner, is to be returned to Chili as Minister, in the name of Reform. The last time he was there in an official character he cut quite a figure with a notorious woman. He will leave her behind this time and thus exemplify Reform.

THE health authorities are beginning their annual agitation about the noxious weeds on the vacant lots and goat pastures up town. Weeds are not wholesome, but they hide the old oyster cans. We will excuse the weeds if the city will wall in the pestilence that is now crawling out of the broken Mill Creek sewer.

AN Ohio doctor claims that he cured a rabid case of small-pox recently with a few doses of lemon juice. If his experiment should be indorsed by the medical fraternity the gentlemen who are in the habit of dashing their liquor with the juice of the citron will feel justified in dodging the perils of vaccination.

IN order to gratify the general craving for the classic drama, some St. Louis manager should bring out the Sophoclean play, which the Republican calls the "Octopus Tyrannus," in the juicy Greek. It has made quite a hit at Harvard. If received with favor here it might be followed with the Eunuchus of Terence in the original Latin.

IF the management of the St. Louis Fire Alarm Telegraph is to be judged by the treatment that our disabled alarm bell has received during the past three weeks, we would advise the Board of Underwriters to meet at once and raise the rates of insurance. We shall have to send to Chicago for somebody to come and put our apparatus in order.

OBJECTION is made by the Globe-Democrat to Gen. HURLBURT as Minister to Peru because he is in the habit of staying drunk occasionally. If every prominent Republican who is the victim of his own generous hospitality is to be discarded, there will be a terrible slaughter of United States Senators, diplomatists, Port Collectors and Postmasters.

ACTING upon the suggestion of the POST-DISPATCH the Street Commissioners have at last started in to bring the Street Railway Companies to time. The Fifth Street Company was fined $500 in the Second District Police Court this morning for neglecting to keep its tracks in repair. Now let the other law-defying companies have some of the same medicine.

MR. CHRISTIANCY threw up a soft seat in the Senate to go to Peru in a ministerial capacity in search of consolation and the picturesque. Because he had the misfortune in his old age to marry a fool he has been recalled from his station in disgrace. His moral tone is not sufficiently elevated for an Administration that runs on skimmed milk and broken promises.

IN the good old times the discomfited Roman soldier was wont to set his gladius against his breast and fall upon his face as a means of escaping humiliation. The sensitive Japanese nobleman, seeking oblivion, draws his long bladed sword and rips open his bread-basket. As near as we can get at it we judge that Mr. CONKLING has committed hari-kari. The odor that permeates the country betokens the disemboweling process.

MR. CONKLING, finding that he could be no longer of use in the Senate, threw up his commission and retired with the philosophic dignity of a poisoned SOCRATES. Yet there's Mr. MAHONE, who isn't worth as much in the Senate as a yellow dog, sitting with his heels cocked up on his desk as complacently as though the mantle of THOMAS JEFFERSON had fallen upon him. It's a lumber yard against a wooden tooth-pick that he won't resign because of his utter inability to caress the country into a state of composure.

A CABLE telegram to the New York World says that Lord SHREWSBURY will marry Mrs. MUNDAY, with whom he eloped a short time ago, as soon as her husband procures a divorce. His Lordship has already settled a large sum of money upon her. People wondered by what means the lady's brother so quickly discovered the fugitives' hiding-place on the Continent, and it is now said that at the proper time their whereabouts was judiciously communicated to her relatives by Mrs. MUNDAY herself. It is now pretty well understood that the noble Lord, who was so opportunely walloped by the indignant relative, was simply played as a gudgeon, but in Europe, as in this country, all's well that ends well, and if the Lord is satisfied we are.

A BULLETIN from the Census Office gives some rather interesting statistics touching the daily newspapers of the United States. We have at present 962 daily papers, and of this number 546—or more than half—are afternoon publications. The average subscription price is $7 33 per annum, and the people of the country pay yearly for their newspapers the snug sum of $26,250,100. During the census year 114 daily papers were started and 86 suspended. It will be seen that the births exceed the deaths considerably.

SENATOR PLATT, who rose in his dignity the other day and followed Mr. CONKLING out into the shadowy forests of private life, was only elected last winter. He had scarcely time to warm his cushion. If he had been in his normal condition when he left the Senate Chamber he would have felt a streak of sadness playing up and down his backbone as his mental eye rested upon the vista spread out before him of nearly six years of Senatorial ease and dignity, but the fact is, PLATT was syggignocized. He was under the mesmeric influence of the great CONKLING.

WE were misled the other day by the false reporting Republican into speaking of our valued friend, BRITTON A. HILL, in a tone bordering on the disrespectful. We are assured that Mr. HILL never entertained anything but the most cordial feeling for the POST-DISPATCH, and that any remarks that he may have made in reference to its enterprise in news gathering were employed in a purely Pickwickian sense. Mr. HILL is a gentleman of rare abilities and most generous impulses. We feel for him something of that degree of affection that makes all seasons summer, and have moved that the recent reference to him be expunged from the record.

IN bidding this morning for the city printing the POST-DISPATCH and Globe-Democrat were the only papers in the city that swore to actual circulation. Our affidavit showed that our circulation was more than four times the legal requirement of 3,000—or an average per day of between 13,000 and 14,000. The Republican, with its usual modesty, contented itself with swearing that it actually printed 3,000 per day. We have heard the figures set down at 3,500, but at all events a newspaper that has been in existence since 1808, and that has been on a decline ever since 1812, is to be congratulated on having retained sufficient patronage to be able to take an annual shy at the city printing.

GEN. HURLBURT, of Illinois, who has been awarded the Peruvian Mission, is a brother of the editor of the New York World. He was an anti-GRANT man at Chicago, and is naturally in high favor with the present Administration. The accomplished brother of the World wanted him billeted to Mexico—a fair land upon which his enterprising eye has rested for many years; but as there are rich mines in Peru, and broad valleys suitable to the laying of railway tracks, provided the conquering Chilians have not blasted the land with the hot hoofs of their vandal armies, he may not mourn as one wholly without hope. We expect to hear of a branch office of the World at Lima inside of six months which will do a general railway brokerage business.

THERE is something quite novel and appropriate in the proposition to have subscriptions to JEFF DAVIS' new book taken with the understanding that they are to be paid in Confederate money. Col. STARK, of Yellville, advances the idea in to-day's POST-DISPATCH. Mr. DAVIS is an earnest believer in the justice of the Confederate cause. He does not regard it as lost in any sense. It is only in abeyance. He owes it to himself to show his faith in the Confederate promises to pay. His book will have a tendency to strengthen the Confederate money market, because no good believer can read it without feeling that justice, as interpreted by Mr. DAVIS, must prevail. We will take twelve copies of the work and pay for them in the fiat money of the Confederacy.

IN yesterday's Republican there was an article giving the levels of the lakes, the Illinois River and the Mississippi at Rock Island. If the writer, Mr. SCOTT, is correct in his figures, the construction of a canal between the points named becomes a question of great importance to the river towns between Davenport and the mouth of the Illinois River. It would be but right to examine into the effect of such a canal, admitting that Mr. SCOTT'S statement of altitudes is correct. He gives the low water level at the mouth of Rock River and the Illinois at LaSalle as the same—483 feet. Hennepin is located twenty miles below LaSalle and we may put down the slope of the Illinois River as four inches to the mile—eighty inches, or six feet eight inches. This gives a clear fall from the low water level at the mouth of Rock River to the low water level at Hennepin of six feet eight inches. But this is not all. The friends of the canal expect to tap Rock River some distance above the mouth, and by so doing give a still greater fall into the Illinois. It is clear that such a canal must injure the Mississippi from the point where it leaves it to the point where the volume is brought back, for it is not supposed that water will flow up hill. The volume is already scant, and the turning of Rock River into the Illinois will not add to the volume of the Mississippi. It would be well for the river towns, Hannibal, Quincy, Keokuk and Madison, to look into this subject, as it is one of life and death to them.

NO country in the world ever showed such an increase of wealth within a single decade as the United States. Spain, in her palmiest days of conquest and robbery, scarcely equaled us in the accumulation of money. For fifteen years we have had continuous prosperity. Our crops have been abundant and our mines of silver and gold have yielded unexampled riches. The article of petroleum alone has produced enough money from foreign sales to make "times easy." Our export of breadstuffs and provisions has kept a steady stream of gold pouring in upon us and the surplus money in the land is actually unable to find investment. The 4 per cent Government bond now commands a premium of 17½, which makes the interest equal to 3 per cent. Capitalists are rushing to exchange their 5 and 6 per cent bonds for the new 3½ per cent securities. That man would have been voted a fool who would have predicted ten years ago that the Government rate of interest would ever be as low in this country as in England, and yet we are rapidly approximating it. The English Consol, bearing 3 per cent interest, now commands 102½. Everything goes to show that a three per cent bond could be easily floated in this country, and that HAYES committed a crime when he vetoed the Funding Bill last winter at the dictation of a few capitalists. Our debt is now nearly all held at home. A few years ago the bulk of it was in Europe. Rich men have more trouble in finding profitable investments now than poor men have in gaining good livings, and the time is rapidly approaching when the great money center of the world will be transferred from London to New York City.

WE are not prepared to believe that there is a movement on foot among certain superreligious people to prevent BOB INGERSOLL from delivering his lecture in this city next Sunday evening. In the first place, with all due deference to the able anonymous lawyer who is on such intimate terms with Judge COOLEY and his work on "Constitutional Limitations," we must insist that there is no law in Missouri to prevent Mr. INGERSOLL or any other man from delivering a speech in opposition to the Bible and Christianity, so long as his language is neither profane, obscene nor blasphemous. In the second place, if there were forty statutes to cover the case the friends of religion could not do a worse thing than institute a persecution of the great infidel. He would thrive under that sort of thing. Every skeptic, free thinker and unbeliever in the land would rally around him. He would be exalted as a martyr. Every inquiring youth, filled with a public school education and little or no religion, would say to himself, "What is Christianity that it is afraid of one bold scoffer?" We have in St. Louis one hundred and eighty-one churches, each provided with a theologian, trained and skilled in his calling and ready at all times to break a lance with an impious Saracen. If this formidable army can't meet and bring discomfiture to INGERSOLL, then the religion under which the world has grown and prospered for eighteen hundred years is painfully defective. We say to the religious people, let INGERSOLL severely alone. If he brings baneful doctrine to St. Louis, the Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER, who is to lecture here next week, will provide the antidote. The portraits of these distinguished men appear together in the display windows in loving concord. They resemble DAVID and JONATHAN in their fraternal juxtaposition. They play here under the same management, and it looks as though they had formed a combination similar to that of the pair of Yankees—one of whom went through the country selling patent medicine, the other following up and taking orders for tombstones. Brethren, let us do nothing rash, for the time is coming when a hook will be placed in the nose of the raging leviathan.

PERSONAL.

—The King of Zanzibar travels with 400 trunks. The King must be an American girl.

—Jem Mace, the pugilist, has made a fortune as a mining speculator in Australia.

—China asks for nothing under the new treaty except that all Pinafore companies shall be kept at home.

—Jay Gould didn't buy a railroad last week, preferring to spend his money in taking his family to a church fair.

—A correspondent wishes information as to what a bench show is. Go to the nearest park any evening and find out.

—Naples has lost its most noted beggar. He had been married thirteen times, and the number of his children is said to have been 123, now all living except two.

—Mr. Henry Watterson, in a Philadelphia letter to the Louisville Courier-Journal, speaks of Col. John W. Forney as the man "from whom I earned my first salary as a newspaper writer." It is gratifying to know that Mr. Watterson at one time earned his salary.

—"Mother," remarked a Duluth girl, "I think Harry must be going to propose to me." "Why so, my daughter?" queried the old lady, laying down her spectacles, while her face beamed like the moon in its fourteenth night. "Well, he asked me this evening if I wasn't tired of living with such a menagerie as you and dad."

—Mr. John Hay is no slouch of an editor, and is just whooping himself during Whitelaw's absence. He has discovered that Beaconsfield was the only Prime Minister whose death occurred during the month of April, and flaunts the fact before the public in the editorial columns of the Tribune. There is nothing like enterprise in securing news.

—Col. Thomas A. Scott has slowly but steadily improved during the last week, but he is yet infirm. He expects to remove to his country place in a few days, where pure air and quiet are expected to hasten the recovery of his strength. His wonderful physical organization has asserted itself unexpectedly in rallying from an attack that was at first feared by all as fatal.

Art, Science and the Church.

ST. LOUIS, May 16, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I spent last week a rare evening listening to the services which consecrated the Crow Museum to the grand and noble mission of Art. I looked with a feeling at once of admiration and awe at the evidence of beautiful art exhibited in the structure itself. Thought, taste and culture dedicated the building to its high uses before even a word had been spoken by the distinguished citizens who presided there. To me it was a highly religious service and a rare communion with divine things.

That magnificent gift seemed to become a grand Cathedral of Art, a sacred home for the best and most beautiful creations of genius and talent. I breathed the silent benediction, God bless Wayman Crow, who has blessed us all.

Too deep for the cheap commonplaces of praise is the profound impression and sense of gratitude which inspire the people of St. Louis, that that true gentleman and noble patron of art, Wayman Crow, himself a monument of honor to the city, should, in the ripe fullness of his judgment, have made such a regal and perpetual bequest and such a home of beauty for the people.

He who does a gracious deed like that confers a benefit which money can not measure, for it lifts us all upon a higher level and gives us more elevated ideals.

I call the Museum the Church of Art. For the true Church of the Future will consecrate what ever there may be of high art—of painting or sculpture, or music, or any other creation of genius or result of science to its most divine service—never opposing but bringing itself in legitimate sympathy with a free unfolding humanity. The genius of those who have given voice to nature, and painted her most beautiful forms, or have spoken in immortal words, the hopes and griefs, the joys and sorrows of the human heart, shall minister at her altars, and the fragrance of their memories shall perfume its "fretted vaults and long drawn aisles." M. W. WILLIS.

Not Pleased.

ST. LOUIS, May 19, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The new Bible revision is to go into operation this month. It don't suit me at all. For instance, it substitutes hades for hell. Now, hell is a good healthy word and means all it is worth. But when I tell a man to go to hades he will laugh at me. I wish they would let the old Bible stand. This is an age of everlasting fussing. They won't let anything alone. Who knows and cares anything about hades? Give us back the good old-fashioned word hell and I shall be happy once more. JUDGE.

Not That Kind.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I noticed in the Republican the other day an editorial statement to the effect that you had a reporter on your paper who winds himself up like a cheap clock. I hope that he doesn't use the kind of key that is employed in the Republican office in winding up editors, proprietors and reporters. I mean whis-key.

P. S.—If you will pay me $3 per week I will furnish you with an entire series of jokes of this novel character.

We Should Smile.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"Will Stanley Matthews, who had been nominated by the President for Associated Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate, accept the office?" anxiously inquires the New York Sun. It has always been understood out West that a duck would swim.

Slightly Facetious.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

The country could stand Conkling's resignation, but when it was announced that Platt—even Platt—had gone, too, there was darkness, as of an eclipse, on the face of the continent. It was too, too utter.

On a String.

From the Chicago Tribune.

There was a mistaken impression abroad in this community yesterday that Senator Conkling had resigned. He has not resigned. He has simply put his office on a string, where he can get it again whenever he wants it.

Sensitive Platt.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

Ex-Senator Platt seems to have a keener care for patronage than his portentous colleague. When he saw that Robertson would be confirmed, he felt that a seat in the Senate was not good for anything.

In the Last Ditch.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Senator Conkling, having pranced about in his war paint until the time for fighting came, immediately retreated to his machine bomb-proof at Albany.

A Decided Failure.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

The time of the country has been given for nearly twelve months to the conciliation of Senator Conkling, and according to latest advices the experiment has not been totally successful.

The Great Issue.

From the Baltimore Gazette.

Conkling has taken the place of the negro in politics. What he will do becomes the burning question of the hour.

Long Time to Wait.

From the Chicago Times.

GOLD BRICK TRICKSTERS.

Confederates in a Confidence Game Anxious to Betray Each Other.

This morning Officer McCormack was accosted by one stranger with the request that he should arrest another stranger at the Planters'. The complainant said that the man he pointed out was one of a gang of "gold brick" operators and had turned a trick for $2,000 at Hot Springs. He offered to furnish all the details if the officer would make the arrest and take the prisoner to the station house. The officer wanted both men to go with him and they went.

As soon as they were before the Sergeant they commenced to abuse and accuse each other. Fred Cole claimed to be a recent arrival here. The other, Geo. W. Dayton, asserted that he had been here several months. Cole claimed that he had been unjustly accused for a job that Dayton had done. He said the victim was J. B. Storey, who could now be reached by telegraph at the Arlington House, Hot Springs. The trick had been turned at the Springs about three months ago and Cole had been arrested but had been set at liberty on demonstrating his innocence. Dayton was the guilty party, he claimed, and he urged that he be locked up until the statements could be verified by telegraph. Dayton, on the other hand, was just as forward in giving Cole away. "Hold that man. Don't let him get away," he said; "he is the guilty party."

As the best way out of the dilemma it was concluded best to keep both men prisoners until the Arkansas parties could be heard from. That they ought not be given any opportunity to confer and come to a compromise, one was locked up at the Chestnut Street Station and the other was sent to the Four Courts.

A Midnight Visitor.

A faint cry attracted the attention of Mrs. Susan Jones, who lives at No. 36 Targee street, about midnight last night. When she opened the door she discovered a female infant well wrapped up and lying on the steps in front of the house. Mrs. Alice Ross, residing at 118 South Tenth street, took the little stranger to her home, where she will adopt it as her own.

CITY PERSONALS.

Drs. Hodgen, Jordan and party have returned home.

Mr. John W. Norton left for Louisville last evening on business. He will return on Sunday next.

Miss Berry, of Chicago, who has been visiting Mrs. G. H. Plant at her residence on Washington avenue, returned home Wednesday after having a very delightful visit.

Mr. George McManus, the Treasurer of the Grand Opera House, is whiling the summer away employing men for the South St. Louis Railroad. He speaks nothing but Irish and English and consequently he has shipped quite a number of German and Polish emigrants southward who really wanted to be directed to the Mullanphy Board office. Mac means well, but he don't know.

THE CITY PRINTING.

Opening of the Bids From the Different Papers To-Day by the Register.

At high noon to-day the City Register opened the bids for the public printing in the presence of quite a gathering of publishers. Every paper in the city was represented except the Republican, and the gentlemen chatted very contentedly together until the bell tolled 12. The seats were arranged in a circle around Mr. Berg, and that gentleman was made the target for all sorts of verpal offers to do cheap printing. At last the hour sounded and Mr. Berg opened the top envelop of the pile of bids lying on his desk, which was that of the POST-DISPATCH. After reciting the terms of the advertisement the Dispatch Publishing Company offered to do the printing for 1¾ cents per line, nonpareil measurement, to furnish 200 copies of the proceedings of the Municipal Assembly in pamphlet form at $3 a page, 200 copies of the City Ordinances at $2 a page, and 300 reports of the proceedings of the Board of Public Improvements at $3 a page. An affidavit was enclosed, sworn by Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, that the paper had more than four times the circulation required by law, and specifying further that in the last four weeks 316,320 copies of the paper had been circulated, making the average daily circulation of the POST-DISPATCH 13,176.

The Globe-Democrat bid 3 cents a line and $2 a page for the same work, and Mr. Houser swore to an average daily circulation of 27,373 copies.

The POST-DISPATCH and the Globe-Democrat were the only two papers which swore to their exact circulation, the other journals confined themselves to the statement that their circulation was over the limit required by law. The Republican did not even make affidavit to this fact but contented itself with a certificate to that effect. Mr. Ray, the Secretary of the Globe-Democrat, offered to bet, with no takers, that the circulation of the Republican would fall several thousand short of the POST-DISPATCH. The Republican's bid was a remarkable document in more ways than one. It bid "blank" cents per line for the printing and $1 80 per page for the pamphlets for the Municipal Assembly and the ordinances, and $1 70 for the pamphlets for the Board of Public Improvements. Whether the omission of the number of cents bid on the printing was an accidental one or not was a mooted point. The German papers bid as follows: The Westliche Post, 1¼ cents per line; the Anzeiger 1¾ cents per line; the Amerika, 2½ cents per line. The Register will report the bids and his action upon them to the Assembly shortly. Nothing has yet been done with them.

MATTERS MUNICIPAL.

The Mayor's Message—A Financial Problem—Gen. Turner's Place.

The Republican politicians who were on the war-path to take the official scalp of Street Commissioner Turner have quieted down. They don't exactly know whether they have made any impression on Mayor Ewing. The latter is giving all his attention to the preparation of the annual message, and the office-seeking element find him not inclined to give much heed to their plans and arguments. One thing is certain, the promise to make a vacancy in Gen. Turner's office has let up and will not be renewed until after the Mayor has got his recommendations before the Assembly and some much-needed legislation is under way. The friends of Chauncey I. Filley say that he has not taken any part whatever in the movement against Turner, and has not made any recommendations or attempted to exert any influence with the Mayor as regards removals from office.

One of the principal features in the forthcoming message will be devoted to the city's finances. The Mayor, it is said, designs to show very plainly that the revenue of the city is not near what it should be, and to point out clearly the necessity for rigid economy under the present system of assessment and taxation. He is for a liberal policy of public improvements, but will demonstrate that such is impossible unless the revenue can be increased. Bearing on this latter point he has been consulting with various heads of departments, particularly the Comptroller and the Board of Assessors, and is trying to formulate a plan to increase the revenue. The whole subject will be treated in the message at considerable length.

AFTER THE STREET CAR COMPANIES.

The Fifth Street Line Fined $500—Other Corporations Served Notices.

This morning in the Second District Police Court the St. Louis or Fifth Street Railroad Company was fined $500 by default for not keeping the roadway between their tracks in repair. The notice of Street Commissioner Turner was served by Matthew Brazil on C. Pepper, President of the Company, on May 5. The part of the road complained of is on Broadway between Bremen avenue and Ferry street, and on some parts of it the roadway is six inches below the level of the track. On the part of the road mentioned some repairing had been done, but not sufficient to meet the requirements of the notice which was served. Another case of the same nature against the road was continued until next Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mr. Brazil, the Assistant Street Inspector, is now busily engaged serving notices of a like character on the various street car companies in the city. Mr. Daniel Tracy, the attorney of the Second District Court, was unusually vigorous in his prosecution against the company and asked the maximum fine in such cases.

Hot Heads.

Although there are very many hair preparations on the market, nothing has ever been offered as a cooling, refreshing and invigorating tonic for the hair except Mellier's Cinchona Hair Dressing. It contains no oil, is free from sediment, is inodorous, and when the head is hot and feverish gives comfort and relief.

New Buildings.

H. Hartman is to have a one-story, one-room feed store, to cost $400, on De Kalb street, between Sidney and Victor.

W. Richards has contracted for the erection of a two-story, two-room stable, to cost $600, on Thirteenth and Howard streets.

On the southwest corner of Morgan and Fifteenth streets Mr. J. A. Stanton is to have a two-story, six-room dwelling and store to cost $1,800.

Mr. Jno. N. Frank this morning closed contracts for the erection of a one-story, eight-room dwelling, to cost $1,500, on Lynch and Pastelozzi streets.

A permit for the erection of the armory for the St. Louis Light Cavalry was issued to-day. The new structure is to be two stories with eight rooms, and will cost $8,000. It will be 109 feet deep and have a frontage of 102 feet.

A Patent License.

Judge Treat to-day, in the United States Circuit Court, dismissed the bill in equity, Adams vs. Meyerose et al. This course is taken without prejudice, and it follows the ruling of the United States Supreme Court. The plaintiff sought to charge the defendant as infringer of a lamp patent, despite the contract of license, in consequence of non-compliance with its terms.

At first it seemed clear to Judge Treat that the suit was well founded, but the United States Supreme Court having taken an adverse view in the case of Hartell vs. Tilghman, there was nothing left for this court to do but to dismiss the bill and remit plaintiff to the remedies indicated in that decision.

The Young Ladies' Aid Association Festival.

Uhrig's Hall, corner of Washington and Jefferson avenues, was crowded last night, the occasion being the festival for the benefit of the Young Ladies' Mutual Aid Association of the Immaculate Conception Parish. The large hall was beautifully decorated and the fancy table, all prize table and lemonade well attracted general attention for the taste shown in their erection as well as for the value and variety of the objects displayed. The refreshment table seemed to be well patronized, and everywhere on the floor the letter carriers of the postoffice were visible. Madam Shalby de Romscham, the mysterious inmate of the gipsy tent, was besieged with visitors and the wheel of fortune as usual did a good business. The festival continues to-night when even a larger crowd is looked for.

DELIGHTED DAN.

A Presentation of $500 in Gold to the Exchange Caller.

There is not a more popular officer of the Merchants' Exchange than Dan Bartlett, the caller of grain and provisions, and also assistant secretary, and who has won the greatest praise from the members for his devotion to their interests and his faithful services. On several occasions is he has been the recipient of testimonials at their hands. Lately a subscription was started on 'Change for the purpose of presenting him with another testimonial, and in a short time $500 was obtained. To-day at the 11:30 a. m. call Mr. Fish Shirmer mounted the caller's stand as Bartlett started the call and thus addressed him:

"Mr. Bartlett, a few of your many friends, especially those members of this Board, recognizing and appreciating your uniform kindness and courtesy and the fidelity shown by you in your trying position as its caller, a position for so many years filled by you with credit to yourself and to the satisfaction of your friends, desire to manifest their regard for you as a man and an officer of this association by tendering you some token of their esteem. It is my privilege under these pleasing circumstances to be the medium of this expression and to present to you in their behalf this testimonial which I hold in my hands, and which is couched in the following terms."

Mr. Shirmer then read the subscription list with its expressions of appreciation and esteem, after which he handed Dan a handsome mahogany box in which were twenty-five $20 gold pieces. Dan was evidently overcome with surprise and emotion, but mustered up enough voice to respond appropriately, thanking his friends very much, and saying: "I do not prize the gift so much for its intrinsic worth as I do for its being a testimonial of your good will. In the discharge of my duties I have tried to do my best. The position is at times trying, but I assure you that any mistakes I may make are mistakes of the head and not of the heart. In my few feeble remarks I cannot fully express the gratitude I owe you." His pleasant little response was greeted with loud applause, after which the regular business of the call was proceeded with, Dan first asking the indulgence of the operators as he "felt a little rattled."

'CHANGE GOSSIP.

The largest river shipment ever made from this market was taken out Monday by the steamer Oakland and barges, the total aggregating 10,600 tons, or 20,120,000 pounds. Included in this was 159,271 bu bulk wheat, 13,544 bu bulk corn, 5,854 sacks oats, 5,000 brls flour, 515 sacks corn, 2,944 sacks bran, 54 tons hay and 5,998 packages sundries.

Every year at about this season, but perhaps more particularly this year than others previously noted, loud complaints are heard of hot and damaged corn that has been shipped to the South. This year it has not alone been corn, but meats and hay have suffered from the very hot weather, and the entire lack of ventilation on their way South. Hay shipped to this market, too, has arrived here out of condition and generally steaming hot. All this has been when the stuff was loaded into box cars where there was no ventilation. It seems strange that the railroad companies cannot arrive at some manner of ventilation for their freight cars, and thus protect their customers' interests. The railroads claim that if they have ventilators in their cars the rain can get in and inflict damage. There is a ventilator that could be used that would allow free entrance to the air and keep out the rain, too. This is the patent ventilator that is fastened on windows, and which is acknowledged to be the best ever invented.

It seems as though the bulls on wheat had everything in their favor just now. Stocks of wheat are light and steadily dwindling at all the principal points. Strong parties are said to be under the market at Chicago and other places and intend manipulating prices, if they are not doing so already, and reports from the growing crop just now are all one-sided, giving the most unfavorable account of damage by the weather and bugs. The shorts are occasionally able to produce a sample of the growing wheat that looks excellent, and to-day Ben Clark brought in from his farm in St. Louis county a sample of the wheat from there that was in fine condition and promises well; but the bears are not alone short on the market, but short on about everything else that could influence it. There is no trouble in obtaining evidence of damage to wheat. Letters innumerable are received from different sections detailing serious injury to the plant, and every man who comes from the country has the same story to tell. Mr. Nelson, a prominent miller, of Hillsboro, Ill., who was on 'Change to-day, in conversation with a POST-DISPATCH reporter gave a very gloomy account of the wheat growing along the line of the I. and St. L. Road. The prospects two weeks ago were good, and farmers expected an average crop, but now they say they will do well if they raise enough for bread and seed for their own use. It was not so much the weather that hurt the plant as the Hessian fly, which is said to be inflicting great damage. Many of the farmers are said to be plowing up their fields of wheat in order to put some other grain or seeds that they can raise. Mr. Nelson says that he is not interested one way or another in wheat, but is so much impressed with what he has heard and seen that he intends to go long a five or so. Messrs E. A. Driver & Co., of Chicago, telegraph to E. M. Samuel & Sons, as follows to-day: "Our reports of prospects of shortage of wheat crop in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio are appalling." Several telegrams from Missouri and Kansas report great damage by chinch bugs.

THE OLD DODGE.

Experts Examined in the Kring Murder Trial.

A Hypothetical Case of Insanity Set Up by the Defense.

The Kring case now in progress in the Criminal Court is rapidly drawing to a close. When Judge Burckhardt took the bench this morning the expert testimony was introduced by the defense. A hypothetical case setting forth all the facts that have been developed concerning Kring, his relations, their actions, his actions and letters written by him previous to the homicide. Dr. Bauer was the first witness put on the stand. He said that assuming the facts of the hypothetical case to be true, the individual was in sane at the time he committed the deed, for he recognized all the symptoms in this case. Supposing change of character, hallucinations, imaginations and delusions, believing that his father was dead, that he himself was under indictment for murder, believing that he had criminal connection with a woman, having made an attempt to commit suicide, were all grounds for deciding so. Suicidal and homicidal attempts are considered signs of rising insanity. The letters written previous to the homicide, the remarkable change of character, also warning signs, were not at all strange for insanity. Calling upon Almighty God to assist him in a bad act was a sign of insanity as the invocation was based on a false premises, although it is strange how logical insanity is sometimes. He thought the hypothetical case was full of signs of the insanity of the hypothetical individual. Gov. Johnson then asked would the removal of the hereditary hypothesis make any difference? The doctor thought not. Insanity, he said, sometimes sprang into existence and sometimes its progress was noticeable. It might exist for years before detected. The doctor considered the case under consideration was one of general insanity, with perhaps a little monomania for love pecping through.

DR. KERSHAW

was called, and the hypothetical case again read. He said: Assuming the facts stated in the hypothetical case to be true, the mental condition of the individual was unsound, and my reasons are as follows: In the first place, we have a history of an hereditary taint. Eccentricity is the border line of insanity. An eccentric is apt to become insane when some strong inciting cause comes in that direction. We have an instance of a lady who was eccentric about her furniture, and who one day followed a man named Copperman, who arrived at a hotel in the city in which she resided. She had only been eccentric, and supposing he was a man she had been looking for for a long time she went to the hotel, where she found the man had left and gone to Chicago. She took a train for that city and was brought home a raving maniac, showing that having encountered the exciting cause her eccentricity was changed to insanity. The witness then reviewed the freaks of the hypothetical case and pronounced the individual insane.

Cross-examined by Mr. Joy—What is insanity?

Dr. Kershaw—It is a manifestation of a disease of the brain. Eccentricity is a manifestation of the brain, as I understand it. Insanity is more marked or defined than eccentricity. The insane person had already done something apart from the healthline, while an eccentric person is always capable of doing the same thing at any time.

A recess was taken at 1 o'clock. Two more experts will be put on the stand, when the case will be closed at about 5 o'clock this evening.

Patrick McCann, Justice of the Peace, still exercises his authority in that capacity, notwithstanding the recent ruling of Judge Lindley in a preliminary stage of the contest for the purpose of declaring his election invalid. The Courts recogize his right to perform the functions of the office pending a final decision in the case, and he is sitting daily as usual.

The will suit, the Sunderland heirs against Ann E. Hood, on trial yesterday in Judge Lindley's Court was continued to-day until next term, the counsel for defendant contending that he was "surprised." Col. Slayback wanted to prove that the deceased, Sunderland, was unduly influenced a few hours before his death and that at the time he was in no mental condition to make a will. The beneficiary's counsel was not prepared for this issue.

AMUSEMENTS.

L'AFRIQUE.

The week of home opera at the Olympic is thoroughly appreciated by the public. Another large and fashionable audience assembled last evening to enjoy the performance of Wayman McCreery's bright little comic opera, "L'Afrique," and the applause scattered liberally throughout was a well deserved tribute to the talent of the young composer and a merited acknowledgment of the excellence of the performance. It is gratifying to record a genuine success for home effort. "L'Afrique" will always be popular here. The gems of the work are received with enthusiasm at each performance and all the chorus features obtain marked recognition. Much credit is due the ladies and gentlemen who sustain the leading roles, Misses Cora Carpenter, Pauline Schuler and Messrs. Phil. Branson, Poindexter, W. G. Smythe and Ed. Dierkes. Good voices and fair dramatic abilities are happily combined in the strength of this cast. Mr. Phil. Branson, as Lieutenant De Bracey, has scored a bright success, and Miss Cora Carpenter does exceedingly well in the interesting role of the Captain's daughter. The chorus is admirably trained, and the orchestral work carried out with strict and conscienticus attention to detail. All the accessories of the Olympic establishment are brought to bear upon the effective presentation of the opera, and the performance is eminently satisfactory in every feature. The melodies of "L'Afrique" will be caught up rapidly as the beauties of the little work become generally known and appreciated. On Saturday there will be the usual matinee when the auditorium will present an audience of musical culture seldom gathered upon one occasion. Waymay McCreery's success has been sealed with the approval of the best elements in society, and the production of "L'Afrique" may properly be reckoned among the most notable events of the season here. The opera will hold the Olympic boards until Saturday evening.

NOTES.

To-morrow evening the first grand promenade concert of the season will be given at Uhrig's Cave. The Knights Templar Band will be in attendance.

The Museum of Fine Arts, Lucas Place and Nineteenth street, attracts large numbers of visitors daily. To-morrow evening the picture and sculpture galleries will be illuminated from 8 until 10 o'clock.

Henry Ward Beecher will appear here for the first time in three years at the Library Hall on Tuesday night. The box sheet is now open at Balmer & Weber's. His latest lecture is to be given, "The New Profession."

"I've got a new racket," said Yorkey Pete, the Viceroy of the boot-blacks, as he laid an extra slice of French gum along the seam of the biggest shoes in the office.

"What is it, Yorkey?"

"Well, you know there's a girl sellin' papers over on Market street. She began last night."

"Is she a new one?"

"Yes; she's just come to town. The boys got round her and whooped at her and that, 'n I jes' went over there and shooed 'em off."

"I didn't know you were so gallant?"

"Oh, yes. You see she's awful lovely; she's just the puttiest girl in town; 'n I told her I was runnin' the gang while Peg was laid up, 'n I'd see she get a show, 'n ef any fellow disturbed she I'd bust his ear; 'n then I told her about our Union and asked her why she hadn't insulted me before she went to work. She 'lowed as how she didn't know anything about the Union, and so I'm goin' to bring 'round the roll for her to sign this morning."

"Yorkey, this looks like the dawn of the tender passion; are you in love?"

Yorkey grinned every tooth of his head into a conspicuous position, chuckled and breathed elaborately on the interlocutor's instep before he went on:

"No, it ain't that; leastways I don't think it's that. I've got a dame in the English Kitchen already. You know that woman what washes the dishes? Blonde girl with gallus hair?"

"Of course he does," interrupted an irreverent "intimate friend of his."

"Well, I been toin' 'round she, but somehow I wouldn't want Susie to gi' me cold vittles. I'd sooner lay out a spread for she."

"I suppose that you will see she gets a chance to sell papers?"

"You bet you I will. I'm goin' to get her papers for her this evening. I don't want her to be pullin' round in there wid that gang, 'n I been showin' her how to sell papers, too—how to sing out 'bout the boilermakers' strike and the boot-blacks' Union and things. You see, she's afraid that folks 'll laugh at her if she sings out, but I told her what did she care? She's got a sister what wants to sell papers, too, 'n I'm to fix her up, too."

"Yorkey, you'll have to hang on to the presidency if you're going to take up a whole family and take care of them." To this he made no reply. Evidently the hand of lovely woman has sown the seed of ambition in Yorkey's heart, and love will rule instead of friendship in his cardiac region. Yorkey is a good boy, and he will see that Susie gets a fair show and that nobody touches her. He can, as he himself puts it, "stand up to any boy in the gang."

A CITY OF THE DEAD.

The Dedication of the God's Acre of Odd Fellowship in Carondelet.

The Odd Fellows of South St. Louis are making arrangements to dedicate their new cemetery on the Military road, a mile and a half south of Carondelet. The time has been set for Decoration Day, May 30, and every effort is being made for the success of the ceremony. Messrs. Chas. F. Vogel, A. F. Perrier, F. Poupeney, Jr., and L. S. Reber compose the committee in charge, and they are anxious to make the dedication worthy of the first Odd Fellows' Cemetery established in this vicinity. The ground selected consists of five acres and has already been properly enclosed and laid out in lots. It is improved in such a manner as to render it the equal of any cemetery in this part of the country, and it is designed to make this future city of the dead the "God's Acre" of Odd Fellowship in this vicinity. The cemetery belongs to and is under the exclusive management of the order, and will always remain so. The committee have issued a circular earnestly requesting all Odd Fellows to participate in the procession and ceremonies. They also invite all Uniformed Patriarchs to attend, and if the latter cannot attend with their divisions they are requested to join the U. P's of Carondelet, who will assemble at the hall, corner of Main and Quincy streets, at 10 a. m. on the day named. The procession will be a grand affair. P. G. Chas. F. Vogel has been appointed Grand Marshal, with power to appoint his aids and assistants.

Divisions of Uniformed Patriarchs and lodges who wish to attend should notify A. F. Perrier, at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, in the Court House, as soon as possible, that all necessary arrangements may be made about music, transportation, etc. At the cemetry grounds there will be vocal and instrumental music. Past Grand Sire Isaac M. Veitch will deliver an address in English, and Mr. Henry Helmenz will speak in German. If the brethren properly co-operate, the affair will be a grand success.

The State Sunday School Convention.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Missouri State Sunday School Convention, to be held at Louisiana, Mo., May 31, June 1 and 2, will be largely attended from this city. The following plan of work for the Convention has been laid out: May 31, 7:30 p. m.—Praise Service—Sunday School Outlook, Home and Abroad. June 1, 9:00 a. m.—Praise and Prayer—Address of Welcome and Response—Appointments of Committees—Reports of Secretary, Treasurer, etc.—Permanent Organization—District Reports. 2:00 p. m.—Promise Meeting—Unfinished District Reports—"The Teacher in Relation to the Sunday School." June 2, 9 a. m.—Responsive Scripture Reading and Prayer—"The Sabbath School in its relations to the Sabbath Day." 2 p. m.—Devotional Services.—"The Bible in Relation to the Sabbath School." Rev. C. L. Goodell, of Pilgrim Congregational Church of this city, will read an address at the evening session of the first day on "Character Builders and Character Building." Stephen Paxon and his half century of Sunday School work will occupy the attention of the Convention. At this Convention the State will be reported by districts instead of by counties. As it will be a mass convention no delegates will be formally appointed, each person in attendanee constituting one. Only a one-third return rate will be charged on all roads. The Louisianians extend a cordial invitation to Sunday School workers to attend and promise to do their utmost to entertain them and make the Convention a success.

A Slick Trick.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

SCHELL CITY, MO., May 18.—A sharp trick was played by the news agent on the M., K. and T. Division of the Missouri Pacific at this point yesterday upon D. S. P. Lybyer, an old gentleman. Mr. Lybyer wanted a paper but had no money except a ten dollar bill which the newsboy said he could change, and turning his back, folded the bill and placed it in his pocket, but, on counting his money found he hadn't enough and handed the old gentleman a folded bill which he supposed was the same one he had handed him, but on making a purchase a few moments later discovered it to be a one-dollar bill. It was telegraphed ahead and the boy was arrested at Nevada and is now here under arrest.

Yesterday a horse was stolen from the farm of O. F. Graves & Sons, five miles from this city. The horse was a "flea-bitten" gray and has a white spot in one eye. Fifty dollars reward is offered.

To-night Mr. J. R. Cunning, the leading dry goods merchant of this city, leads to the altar Miss Addie, the accomplished and lovely daughter of T. J. Smith, of this city.

Bob Ingersoll's Skeleton.

From the Cincinnati Gazette.

The New York Star is informed by a trustworthy correspondent, who is friendly to Col. Ingersoll, that the latter has a skeleton in his closet like other people. He expects every time he delivers a lecture to be shot, and is uneasy at any unusual movement in the audience. His theory is that some religious fanatic will fire at him. His fears are kept alive by threatening letters which he receives by almost every mail. He jokes about them, but "with quivering voice and averted eyes." It is certainly curious that a man who can defy omnipotence is nervous over a possible shot from a revolver. We do not think he is in any danger, though from his standpoint he ought not to shrink from the martyrdom which he has so highly eulogized in others. He has praised Diderot for deeming the approval of posterity a sufficient recompense for all hardship or danger incurred in the cause of progress, and what was enough for the Frenchman should be enough for the American. Still we do not think he will be called upon to test the case.

A Sensible Professor.

From the New York Tribune.

There is always satisfaction in seeing a man of science avoid technicalities and come right down to good old Anglo-Saxon speech. And while so many scatter-brained impostors are endeavoring to scare people into the belief that the planets are going to wreck the world during this year of grace there is solid comfort in the following letter written by Prof. Young to a Nebraska inquirer: "Princeton, N. J., March 28, 1881. Dear Sir—It is true that Saturn, Jupiter and Venus are near conjunction and T. near its perihelion. But they have no influence whatever of any sort on the earth. The nonsense talked about the matter is worthy of the dark ages. Two tom-cats fighting in the streets of Pekin will disturb the world more than all imaginable planetary conjunctions. Yours, C. A. Young." That letter ought to keep many a good half-dollar out of the pockets of peripatetic philosophers who are going about the country lecturing to the credulity of ignorant people.

An Actress' Dodge.

From a New York Letter.

Miss Catharine Lewis, who is to take a benefit at the Fifth Avenue Theater, announced that she would sell tickets at her residence, armed and equipped with a diagram of the house and the coupon documents. The novelty of the thing aroused some, not to say a good deal of interest and curiosity, and young New York calls upon the lady, buys two seats and gets a private stare at the celebrity. A newspaper man also called, of course, to ask her what she meant by it, which seemed a rather unnecessary trouble to take. The custom of personally soliciting patronage in the case of an actress taking a benefit in an English country town is pleasantly taken off by Nicholas Nickleby. In one instance the actress was compelled to knock something off of the price and let the two servant maids in for nothing.

SMALL TALK.

Something About the Health Commissioner, Board of Police Commissioners and Plans.

"What do you think about the movement among the physicians to seat a medical man in your place?" asked a reporter of Health Commissioner Francis at City Hall.

"O, I don't think anything about it," replied that gentleman. "They can't do anything for two years, and by that time half of them will be shown up bogus and the other half will be dead; and if they do survive, I don't care what they do at the end of that time."

Mayor Ewing was in his office dispatching business. "No sir, there is nothing new. I have been consulting with the Board of Assessors, but for my own information more than anything else."

"What about the movement of the physicians to supplant Mr. Francis?"

"Mr. Francis will fill that position until his time expires, two years hence, unless for some very good cause he is removed. Until then nothing will be done in this or any other office."

"What is being done in the Police Board?"

"Since I have been there nothing of any importance has been done, the time being taken up with the strikes and other matters. Action will be taken soon, however, on some things."

"I suppose the houses of ill-fame will come in for a good share of consideration?"

"Yes, but I don't want to go down as assuming as much about the management of the police and other things as published statements would have it believed. The police are managed by the Vice-President, and my only policy towards disreputable women is equality. Treat them all alike. When the subject comes up in the Board they will very likely have to confine themselves to certain localities and not invade resident portions."

"How about the Board's meetings?"

"Well, as far as I am concerned, I am in favor of having them, as well as everything else about the city government, public. I think everything should be open."

Prisoners in the Jail.

The courts are not keeping up with the criminals, and if the increase continues the number of persons confined in the city jail will be greater than it has ever been since that institution was built, except during the labor troubles of '77, when the number reached 225. On May 1 there were one hundred and eighty odd; since then there has been a steady increase and last night there were very nearly 200 inmates in the city jail.

An American Fagin.

From the Kansas City Journal.

It is not generally known that a successor to Fagin has an establishment in this country, but such is the case. There is at present living in this city a young man whose life and adventures would serve as a foundation for Dickens' great story, "Oliver Twist," if Oliver had not been embalmed in history so many years since.

The young man in question, whose name is suppressed at his own request, was kidnapped from his home when about 3 years of age. At any rate, he was so young that his recollections of the preceding portion of his existence are very misty The first recollection he has is of a residence in a house on Sullivan street, in New York, where a great number of boys were also kept. The children ranged in age from 6 to 13 years, and were under the care of a man known as Frank Coon. The boys were taught by their master to pick locks, steal, rob and assassinate, and in fact were a class of youthful thugs. They were turned loose to prey every night and kept inside the house every day. This particular young man escaped from the gang in 1869, when he was about nine years of age, and made his way as far west as Cleveland, O., where he was picked up on the streets by Mr. J. Odell, a Christian gentleman, and taken home. The boy was educated by his benefactor, and in 1875, being well grown, was furnished money to return to New York to discover some clue to his parentage. He had been in the city about a week when he was again found by Coon and taken to a house where he was imprisoned for a month. One night the youthful Twist again escaped confinement and returned to Cleveland, where he was employed in the office of the County Auditor until last November, during which month he left Cleveland for Kansas City, and is now employed in a store here. The young man has employed a private detective to look up Coon, who he thinks is now in Chicago, and also to trace his parentage. Coon was seen in Cleveland by his former charge four years ago and followed some distance, the boy intending to cause his arrest. Before finding an officer Coon was lost in the crowd.

Proof of Animal Life in Other Planets.

From the London Telegraph.

Two interesting problems which have long perplexed the scientific world appear to have been at last definitely solved by the eminent geologist, Dr. Hahn. These questions are, first, whether or not celestial bodies, other than the earth, belonging to our solar system are inhabited by animate beings, and, secondly, whether the meteoric stones from time to time cast upon the surface of this globe emanate from incandescent comets or from volcanic planets. That they at no time formed a part of the earth has been conclusively demonstrated.

Dr. Hahn has recently completed a series of investigations upon some of the huge meteoric stones that fell from the skies in Hungary during the summer of 1866. Thin laminæ of these mysterious bodies, subjected to examination under a powerful microscope, have been found to contain coralline and spongeous formations, and to reveal unmistakable traces of the lower forms of vegetation. All the organisms, animal and vegetable, discovered by Dr. Hahn in the delicate stone shavings he has thus dealt with indicate the condition of their parent world to be one of what is technically termed "primary formation." But the presence of water in that world is proved by the fact that the tiny petrified creatures revealed by the magic of the lens one and all belong to the so-called subaqueous classes of animals. They could not have existed in comets, at least if the assumption be correct that these are in a state of active combustion.

Fighting Fencing Masters.

Paris Letter to London Telegraph.

A duel was fought at Le Vesinet to-day between the Baron de San Malato, the celebrated Italian fencer, whose skilful, if somewhat eccentric manner of using the foils I have already had occasion to mention, and M. Pons, a Parisian fencing master of renown. The quarrel arose out of some words exchanged between the combatants during a fencing bout last week, and an encounter was arranged after some difficulty as to the choice of arms. It was finally settled that M. Pons should use the ordinary French duelling sword, and that the Baron de San Malato should be armed with a triangular foil with an Italian guarded hilt. The duel lasted an hour and a quarter, both principals exhibiting immense skill in handling their weapons. The Italian, who remained on the defensive throughout, and never made a lunge, fought in his usual style, taking up no fixed position, and holding his sword loosely between his fingers. M. Pons, on the other hand, adopted the orthodox method, and made a skilful attack on his adversary. Finally, the Baron de San Malato received two not very serious wounds in the hand and forearm, and the seconds declared honor satisfied.

A Visit to Rochefort.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Henri Rochefort was visited recently by a correspondent, who found the mercurial Frenchman charming in manner and voluble in speech, particularly in defaming Gambetta, whom he called avaricious as well as ambitious, not above a bribe, a heavy gambler at the Bourse, and in danger of coming to an untimely end owing to his fondness for strong drink. He gives Gambetta four more years in which to accomplish his own political ruin. Of Rochefort himself it is said he looks to be fifty years of age. He is tall and thin, has very bushy hair, which stands up in great masses from his forehead and over each ear. He is growing gray, though his mustache is still coal black with a few gray hairs mixed through it.

THE CHIEF'S LATEST SCALP.

An Order Dropping Special Officer Bailey From the Rolls.

"Can I see the Vice-President?" some one asked in the ante-room of the Police Commissioners' headquarters this morning. The tone was a firm one and indicated a caller with an affair of importance to him at least. Doors were wide open to let in the breeze and the conversation could not but be heard by those passing in the corridor.

"Mr. Cupples is busy with Chief McDonough," was the reply of Secretary Gavin. "You will have to wait till they are through."

A few moments later the Chief came out and passed to his own office. The request for an audience with the Vice-President was renewed. This time the secretary replied:

"You will have to let me know the drift of your business."

"My business is of an important nature, and I wish direct communication with the Vice-President. Would you be kind enough to tell Mr. Cupples I would like to see him a few moments?"

There was a brief pause, and the secretary's voice was heard in emphatic tone: "Mr. Cupples don't wish to hold any converse with you whatever, and if you wish to see him you'll have to see him somewhere else. You can't go in there and see him. Those are his orders."

"Very well, sir; you can tell Mr. Cupples that if he won't let me see him at his office, I will resort to some legal means to bring him where I can have an interview with him."

With that Special Officer Bailey walked out into the corridor and fell into the hands of a POST-DISPATCH reporter.

"What is all this about?" he said with a degree of warmth in reply to the question.

"It means that I have been misrepresented to the Vice President by Chief McDonough, who is trying to blacken my character. I have been in the service of the Board some months, and latterly on the Chief's staff. Yesterday Mr. Cupples was induced by McDonough to issue an order not only dropping me from the rolls, but forbidding me to come about the headquarters. I was given no hearing and have had no opportunity to defend myself against any charges. It is true that my relation with the department did not require them to give me a formal trial, but I claim that as a man the Chief has no right to blacken me in this way without any chance to right myself in the minds of the Commissioners who know that I have been employed at police work."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"I called this morning to see Mr. Cupples if possible, not to claim any reinstatement, but to offer him proof that I have been lied about if he was willing to hear it. The Chief has so far imposed upon him that I was refused admittance."

"Do you know what the Chief's charges against you are?"

"No, I haven't any idea at all. I have not been cautioned in any way and had no reason to believe other than that I was rendering acceptable service."

"Are you going to give the matter any further attention?"

"There will be some legal proceedings before I am through, as I wish my friends to know just how my discharge was brought about. The order of the Vice-President is an imputation under which I do not want to rest unjustly."

"How soon will you act?"

"Immediately. I brought a witness here with me in case Mr. Cupples should grant me an interview. Now I going to consult an attorney as to the form of the proceeding. There must be redress somewhere for such an implied insult as denying a citizen the privilege of entering police headquarters."

BOATING.

Programme of the Mississippi Valley Association's Fourth Annual Regatta.

The fourth annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Amateur Rowing Association will take place at Peoria, Ill., the dates set being the 22d, 23d and 24th of June.

The Association, which was organized in 1877, now numbers twenty-one boat clubs among its membership and is in a flourishing condition. The previous regattas have been very successful and the present promises to eclipse them all. The programme is varied and interesting, and the entries already made indicate that the contests will be very close. The programme for the three days is as follows:

First Day—Junior Races. Junior pair-oars, Junior four-oars, six-oared barges, Junior single sculls, Junior double sculls, swimming 100 yards straightaway.

Second Day—Senior Races. Senior double sculls, Senior single sculls, Senior four oars, four oared gigs, tub race 50 yards.

Third day—Free for all. Free for all double sculls; free for all single sculls; free for all pair oars; free for all four oars; junior singles, "Consolation," for the Deere medal; barge race one mile straightaway; all other races one mile and return.

The entrance money for each boat must be sent to the secretary at the time of making the entry. The fees are as follows: Four-oars or more, $15; pairs and doubles, $10; singles, $5

The prizes offered are very liberal. Each member of any winning crew will receive a gold medal or badge, suitable adorned and inscribed.

In addition the following special prizes are also offered by the management:

First—Silk pennants will be given to the winning crews in Association fours, barge and Gig races in addition to the individual medals.

Second—The St. John-Osgood Cup will go to the winning barge crew, together with gold medals to individual members of the crew.

Third—A silk pennant and Union Jack to the club most fully represented at and making the best appearance on the occasion of the Commodore's review. The gift of ex-Commodore C. L. Williams, of Rock Island.

All entries must be made to the secretary on or before Tuesday, June 8, at which time the lists will be closed.

The course at Peoria Lake is said to the best in the West for many reasons. One advantage is the great width, which renders heat rowing unnecessary. The grand stand is located within a few blocks of the centre of the city. The course is within a short distance of the Union Depot, thus obviating any tedious transfer of boats. Peoria is an enterprising city, and the inhabitants have promised to do all in their power to make the visitors comfortable.

The St. Louis Rowing Club and the Modoc Rowing Club will send representative crews and amateurs from this city who will compete in the free for all races. The association declares that the regatta is strictly amateur. No professionals in any sense will be allowed to enter. No pool selling or betting is countenanced at the regatta and the officers are not even allowed to give any information that would assist betting men in making up their calculations. In regard to free transportation for boats and crews and for all information application should be made to the recretary, Lyman B. Grover, Grand Opera House, 89 Clark street, Chicago, Ill. The annual convention of the association will be held at Peoria on the evening of Tuesday, June 21. Each club is entitled to two delegates.

OPINIONS OF LEADING PHYSICIANS.

The success attained by Dr. F. T. Smythe of this city in the treatment and cure of Hernia having attracted the attention of medical men, it was suggested by eminent physicians that a number of persons treated by Dr. Smythe be examined by physicians, and the merits of his method of treating Hernia ascertained.

The following gentlemen were selected as examiners:

Dr. Flanders, an able physician making a specialty of the diseases of the genito-urinary organs, 810½ Olive street.

Dr. Field, professor of surgery in one of the leading medical colleges of the city.

Dr. Harder, a prominent physician and examining surgeon to the Swiss Benevolent society and the Familien society.

The following are the results of their investigation:

From Dr. Flanders:

I have examined a number of persons successfully treated by Dr. F. T. Smythe of this city for Ruptures of many years standing. I have given his method of treatment careful consideration and believe it is a success.

J. P. FLANDERS, M. D.
810½ Olive.

I have examined patients treated by Dr. Smythe for Hernia or Rupture of many years standing. His method is based upon scientific principles, and will, I feel assured, prove to be a God-send to those afflicted with rupture.

GEORGE H. FIELD, M. D.,
313 North Seventh street.

From Dr. Harder:

I have examined Mr. John Buehler, No. 1011 Cass avenue, ruptured 25 years; Mr. Peter Ruga, 710 North Levee, ruptured six years. I now find no trace of their former ruptures. I have made examination of a number of persons treated by Dr. Smythe for rupture. His method is what he claims for it.

ULRICH HARDER, M. D.,
1014 Brooklyn street.

The above indorsement of leading physicians of the various medical schools we deem sufficient to dispel the doubts heretofore entertained regarding the curability of Hernia or Rupture. We have in this city alone cured several hundred persons of Rupture from 6 months to 30 years standing.

The Vienna Institute for the cure of Hernia is at 1113 Washington avenue, this city.

Those desiring the personal attention of Dr. Smythe should call immediately, as he will not be at the Institute during the heated term or summer.

Our method is not a surgical operation, and does not interfere with one's occupation. Persons from abroad can receive treatment and return the same day.

F. T. SMYTHE, M. D.,
President Vienna Institute.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas, by deed of trust dated the thirtieth day of April, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book number four hundred and ninety-two (492), page four hundred and eighty-two (482), Philip A. Bamberger and Katharina Bamberger, his wife, conveyed to Franklin A. Dick and Benjamin Farrar, trustees, to secure the payment of certain notes in said deed of trust described, the following described tract or parcel of ground in the county (now city) of St. Louis, State of Missouri, to-wit: being block number twelve (12) of Robert W. Hunt's addition to the City of St. Louis, a plat of which addition is of record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for St. Louis county (now city), Missouri, beginning at a point where the eastern line of said block intersects the northern line of the Gravois road and running thence northwardly along the western line of Hunt avenue nine hundred and fourteen feet (914) to Scudder avenue; thence westwardly along the southern line of Scudder avenue five hundred and ninety-six feet eleven and one-half inches (596 ft. 11½ in.) to ground of Russell: thence southwardly along the line of said Russell and along the western line of said block twelve, nine hundred and sixty-one (961) feet to the southwest corner of said block twelve, thence eastwardly on a line parallel with the said northern line of said block twelve, four hundred feet to the Gravois road; thence northeastwardly along the northern line of the Gravois road two hundred and three feet and eleven inches (203 11-12) to the point of beginning, containing a tract of land of 15 35-100 arpents, bounded eastwardly by Hunt ave., northwardly by Scudder avenue, westwardly by land of Russell, and southwardly in part by the Gravois Road, it being the same tract or parcel of land acquired by Philip A. Bamberger of Robert W. Hunt and wife by deed dated April 13, 1865, and recorded in said Recorders office, in book 302, page 231. And whereas by a certain renewal agreement between the parties to said deed of trust, dated October 30, 1877, and recorded in said Recorder's office in book number 586, page 57, it was agreed that the principal note in said deed of trust described should remain unpaid until the maturity of all the interest notes described in said renewal agreement, provided all of said interest notes were paid at their maturity, and in case of the non-payment of any of said interest notes at maturity then the extension of payment of said principal note should be of no force or effect, and payment thereof might be immediately enforced under said deed of trust; and it was further agreed that all provisions of said deed of trust should remain in full force until the payment of said principal note; and whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal note and interest notes thereon and taxes upon said property, and said Benjamin Farrar having departed this life, July 14, 1878, notice is hereby given that the undersigned, surviving trustee, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, by virtue of the authority of said deed of trust and in pursuance of the provisions therein, will on

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

The Police Court was depopulated this morning, not even the Judge putting in an appearance.

A nude female floated passed the ferry landing at the foot of Davis street about 4:30 this morning. The watchman at the ferry noticed the body, but as all the skiffs in that neighborhood were locked he was unable to capture it.

Charles A. Wenners the blacksmith at Jefferson Barracks, mourns the loss of about $3,500 which he carried in his pocket last night. A soldier companion, named James Carroll, is supposed to be the thief. Carroll dissappeared from the barracks about the same time as Wenners, and was seen on an Iron Mountain train about half past eight this morning in a beastly state of intoxication.

Charles Ragan, a St. Louis rough, visited Carondelet last night and proceeded to make things lively for the saloon keepers. With the assistance of a couple of other roughs he succeeded in cleaning out two saloons and attempted a third near the South St. Louis Car Stables but received such a warm reception from the bar-tender behind a club that Ragan was taken home in a wagon.

A trial by jury was set for hearing in the Police Court this morning, but continued till the 7th of June. George Randolph, it seems, entertains a bitter hatred towards Frank Thayer. Jealousy is the cause of all their trouble. Randolph had been keeping company with a young lady in Carondelet for two years previous to Thayer's arrival. Thayer soon succeeded in monopolizing the young lady's affections and marrying her. Randolph swore eternal vengeance, and upon meeting his successful rival and his false love a few nights ago he pounded Thayer to his heart's content, and was about to inflict the same penalty upon the young lady when she beat a hasty retreat. Thayer appeared at the police station next day with both eyes in deep mourning and his whole personal appearance greatly altered, and swore out a warrant for Randolph's arrest. The case is exciting considerable interest and will be attended by about half the population.

SPECIAL attention is called to the auction sale of lots on Shamburg Place, west of Grand avenue and adjoining Vandeventer Place, advertised by Booth, Barada & Co., for Saturday next, the 21st inst., commencing at 11 o'clock a. m. A Credit Question.
It is not every day in the week that a policeman has an opportunity to kill a wild steer, and yesterday the officers walking beats along which a rampant bovine meandered enjoyed some target practice. Officer Johnson reported that he laid low the mad steer and received the credit for the same. His brother officers now depose that Officer Johnson never at any time or place was within shooting distance, to-wit: several yards of the aforesaid bovine, and that the same was killed by Officers Butler and Quigley; and furthermore, that when the above spoken of bull was prostrate on the ground and its neck had been cut by a butcher who happened by, and when life was extinct and the steer had handed in his checks, that then and there only did Officer Johnson arrive at the locale and fired two shots at the dead animal, which action does not entitle him to the credit of killing the steer.

Unmanageable Horses.
Between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning a team of horses attached to a carriage, on the box of which the driver was seated, became unmanageable and ran away from Union Depot north on Eleventh street. The driver was powerless to check the frightened animals though he held the reins in his hands. He however succeeded in stearing the team clear of other vehicles that crowded the street at the time. At Eleventh and Market streets the horses turned west, colliding with a telegraph pole and the corner of the soup house. The carriage was upset and slightly damaged, one of the horses receiving several bruises. The driver escaped by jumping from the box as it upset. The rig is owned by Louis Bohle, the livery man.

ROUGHING IT IN RUBBER.

Capt. Paul Boyton Tells About His Peruvian Adventures.

His Plan for Blowing Up the Chilian Navy and Why It Fell Through.

Captain Paul Boyton is at present visiting the city, and is stopping at the Lindell. A POST-DISPATCH reporter ran across him in the rotunda this morning, and had an interesting talk about his Chilian experiences. Boyton is looking well. He is fat and ruddy, with a bright blue eye, and a smile all over his face. He has, however, two grievances; he wildly objects to the papers calling him a "floater." He says that a floater is dead, and that he is just about as lively as anybody. He also protests against spelling his name "Boynton." He says that this has become a nuisance to him; that he refuses to receive telegrams directed in this way and that he appends to all his programmes the statement that his name is plain Boyton, with no "n" in the middle. Barring these matters, the Captain is all serene. He is working away at his new 500-page book, entitled, "Roughing It in Rubber," and expects to have it finished by fall. He leaves St. Louis on Saturday morning for St. Paul, Minn. He will start from that place on May 30 for a trip down the river, arriving here in about ten days. He will lay over for a rest in this city, after which he will run down to Cairo to complete his trip. The Captain does not intend to exhibit much this summer. He will hunt some secluded nook, and put in hard work upon his book.

"You see," said he, "I came pretty near going up in this Peruvian War, and I want to have my book ready in case anything should happen. My notes are in such a state that nobody could use them but myself. I have served under four flags—the French, American, Mexican and Peruvian—but I never got such a turn as I did that time."

"It was a close call for a while, was it?"

"Well, yes, pretty much so. I went to Peru to engage in a hazardous work. I met Don Nicholas de Perola, the Dictator of the Peruvian Republic, at the Paris Exposition and entered into an arrangement with him. I was to go to Peru, be made a Captain in the Peruvian Navy and allowed the use of a steam launch and a sufficient number of assistants. Besides this, I was to be paid $200,000 for the first Chilian man-of-war I blew up, $250,000 for the second, $300,000 for the third, and so on. These are pretty steep figures, but the risk was enormous. I increased the scale of prices, because the danger increased after each attempt. The Chilians had three vessels, the Huascar, the Blanco and the Corcoran, and if these could be put out of the way the war would be over. So, you see, Nicholas was willing to put up quite freely."

"Why did the plan fall through?"

"I never got the steam launch nor any others I needed. Besides this the blockading fleet was very watchful. Spies had reported my presence among the Peruvians, and every precaution was taken. The blockading fleet would cruise up and down before Chorollis all day, but would put out to sea when darkness came on. Then the water was so phosphorescent that the danger of being discovered was largely increased. The order had been issued that all torpedo men should be hanged, and my men on the sloop were afraid to go near enough to a vessel to put me off within reasonable distance of it."

"What method would you have adopted to blow up the vessels?"

"I have a torpedo and a method of my own. The torpedo is conical shaped and contains 100 pounds of dynamite. To it is attached a line, with a piece of rubber about a foot in diameter, with the principle of what the boys call a "sucker." My plan is to swim out with the torpedo in the path a ship is coming. When I am in water, especially at night, it is very hard to see me, as all that is visible is the top of my head and a small part of the torpedo. When the ship strikes me, I catch hold, reach my arm round the bow, and with one slap, fasten the sucker to the side. The line runs around the bow, and the torpedo floats down the other side until held by the line. As soon as the torpedo is fastened in this way the motion of the water puts a set of flanges in motion, and after a certain number of revolutions the torpedo explodes. Of course, in the meantime, I have swam down by the side of the vessel and she has left me astern. I am in danger of being struck, however, by a flying beam or something of that sort, and I am in greater danger of being seen and fired at. One night, I took a boat's crew and pulled out of Chorollis for the purpose of ascertaining just how watchful the Chilians were. We could see a vessel cruising away out in the distance, steadily sailing up and down a track about eight miles in length. I fixed a small powder keg, head up, and arranged it with a float. I placed it as near as possible in the line she was sailing, and pulled in with my men and hid among the rocks to await developements. My object was to see whether I would be safe in working for the keg presented about the same appearance that I would in the water. Well, the vessel approached pretty near the keg, but soon we could hear a commotion on board, and the next moment the water was torn with myriads of mitrailleuse balls. A perfect shower of lead rained into the water all around. If I had been out I would have been torn to shreds. They started the report that they had captured a torpedo, but the old powder keg arrangement was not worth twenty cents. Another time I was surprised while preparing to swim out with a torpedo and I spent two days hiding in a cane, with no food and no clothing but my rubber suit. The failures disgusted me. I sunk nothing but a transport, but I worried the Chilians so that they took the fleet out to sea and kept it there."

A SHARP CREDITOR.

Running Up a Furniture Bill and the Unpleasant Result.

Messrs. Lee and Chandler have a special jury trial on hand to-day before Judge Adams in which thirty thousand dollars damages are claimed for malicious prosecution and imprisonment. Henry Eichhoff had some business dealings with John H. Vornbrock the furniture manufacturer. Representing that he had no debts, credit was given him to the extent of $100. At that time there was a chattel mortgage in existence, but Eichhoff duly paid his bill to Vornbrock and the fact encouraged the representative of the furniture house to seek further orders. The goods were delivered but not paid for when the term of credit had expired, and then the knowledge of a mortgage reached the furniture house. Mr. Vornbrock went before the Grand Jury here and charged Eichhoff with obtaining goods under false pretenses. An indictment issued and Eichhoff was arrested in Cairo, Ill. After being confined here in the city jail thirty-seven days the case was reached in the Criminal Court and Eichhoff was acquitted. He then instituted suit against the furniture manufacturer, and at the first trial the jury stood eleven to one in favor of a verdict for the plaintiff for $10,000, but the twelfth man held out and a mistrial was the result.

CAPITALISTS AND SPECULATORS will do well to attend the sale of real estate at noon to-morrow at the east front door of the Court House. Good property, improved and unimproved, will be sold at public vendue to the highest and best bidder. The property is on Olive street, Eighth street, Eleventh street and Seventh street. Be on hand promptly at 12 m.

A BABY'S BOOST.

The Zeal of a Child on a Street Car Costs a Limb.

Judge Lindley has before him to-day the trial of a damage suit against the St. Louis Railroad Company, Fifth Street Line. Ten thousand dollars are asked of a jury by the Garesche Brothers in behalf of Phil. Bambrick, a little boy of tender years, who lost his right foot in a baby's effort to help a derailed car on the track again. When the car was stopped all the passengers got out and the driver and conductor permitted little Bambrick to lend his hand to the outer panels, the zeal of the poor little fellow being rewarded by one of the wheels passing over and crushing his limb. The company's servants are blamed for knowingly suffering the child to place himself in the way of danger.

THE CITY'S FINE COLLECTIONS.

Process of the Police Court Questioned in a Work House Case.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed and presented this morning in the Circuit Court by Col. David Murphy in behalf of Gustav Kiburz, a young man 18 years of age, confined at the Work House. This question involved points of general interest, and counsel gathered around the bar in some numbers to hear the result of the application. It seems that Kiburz was summoned before the First District Police Court for selling lottery tickets. He failed to appear and judgment, went by default, as in a case before a justice for debt, the city's process issuing for collection of the fine. As the defendant had no goods or chattels to collect upon the officers took his body and he is now pounding rock by the riverside. It is contended in behalf of the young man that no criminal process can issue except in the name of the State. The Constitution having abolished imprisonment for debt, it is contended that Kiburz cannot be held within the Work House walls to satisfy the city's judgment. The Constitution alone provides the way for collecting fines and penalties, and the city's summary proceeding in the Kiburz case, in its own name, cannot be sustained by the Courts. The name of the "State" must be used for all criminal process and the city possesses no greater right or authority for the recovery of a debt than an ordinary suitor. If that position should be sustained the Police Court judgments would be materially upset. No criminal process is suffered by the Constitution to issue without conviction and sentence, and the lottery vendor's attitude before the Police Court in this case was simply that of default in an action for recovery of a debt. Judge Boyle remarked that the petition might have been presented in the Criminal Court, but he would allow the writ to issue, returnable this afternoon.
